Nazis Demand 'Road to Narvik' Across Sweden

(Copyright, 1940, by United Press.)

STOCKHOLM, Monday, May 20.—Germany has presented far-reaching demands to Sweden including the right to transport men, munitions and equipment across north Sweden to the besieged German garrison in Narvik, north Norway, unimpeachable German and Swedish informants told the United Press today.

The Swedish government so far has rejected the demands but negotiations are continuing.

The German "requests," as German informants prefer to call them, were made through the Swedish minister in Berlin who arrived in Stockholm Sunday for his third visit since Friday.

Situation "Serious."

The minister, according to the informants, received an outline of the German desires in Berlin Thursday night. He flew to Stockholm with them Friday and then returned to Berlin with an outline of the Swedish viewpoint.

He made another round-trip Saturday and, after conversations with the German foreign office, returned here yesterday.

Swedish informants said the situation was "serious," but that vigorous German actions" were not expected immediately pending a clarification of the military situation in France, an exchange of views with Moscow and an outline of Finland's position.

Forces Cut Off.

In outlining the demands, it was said, German officials called attention to the fact that their forces in the Narvik area are cut off from effective assistance by German land forces.

If the Allied units attacking the Germans in Narvik should force the German troops into Sweden, the Germans said, according to the informants, "Germany knows very well that the Allies would not stop at the Swedish frontier, but would invade Sweden and occupy the iron mines."

These iron mines, between the Swedish port of Lulea and Narvik, are vital to Germany, which receives a large part of her iron ore from them.

German Chancellor Adolf Hitler was said to have issued orders that the Narvik garrison is to be "saved no matter what the cost."

The German commander in Narvik is a personal friend of Hitler, it was said, and Hitler has assured him that he will "not be deserted."

The informants said the Swedish minister told the government Sunday that Berlin would not stand for much more delay.

Hitler from his field headquarters was said to have instructed Berlin to obtain some action on his requests in the very near future.

Atlanta Bank Teller Shoots Wife, Critically Wounds Self

C. Roy Morris Jr., young Atlanta bank teller, fatally shot his pretty wife, Mrs. Maudie Morris, and then critically wounded himself with a .32 automatic about 9:30 o'clock last night at the home of her grandmother, Mrs. H. G. Bass, of 485 Seminole avenue, N. E., police reported.

Mrs. Morris was shot four times—in the stomach, left breast, right side, and left hip—and was dead on arrival at Georgia Baptist hospital. Her husband was shot in the lower stomach and was in critical condition at the hospital, police said.

Police and witnesses said the shooting occurred when the husband called on his wife, who was alone in the house at the time, and apparently started shooting during an argument.

Mrs. Morris ran from the house screaming, "Roy, don't shoot me," Mrs. Geneva James, of 482 Seminole avenue, told police. She had been attracted to the scene by the shots, she said. Morris chased his wife about the yard, shooting, and then back into the house, where she collapsed, Mrs. James was quoted by police as saying.

Radio Patrolmen L. E. Terrell and W. F. Jones reported Mrs. Morris was lying on the floor inside the front door and Morris was pacing up and down when they arrived.

They quote him as saying:

"I shot my wife and also shot myself. Get us to a hospital. I must have lost my mind for a moment."

Hubert Brown, 18, of 471 Seminole, said:

"About 9:30 o'clock I heard screams from the Bass house and saw Mrs. Morris run out screaming, "God, Roy, don't do it." She ran around in the yard, Morris shooting at her from the porch. She turned and cried, "Oh, God, Roy, you've killed me." He walked down the steps, and helped her up the steps. Morris was standing on the porch near the door as she went inside the house when suddenly there was another shot (which wounded Morris) and the gun dropped from his hand. Morris picked up the automatic and walked into the house."

Young Brown said he shouted to a companion to call police as soon as he realized what was taking place.

Neighbors said Mrs. Bass was out of the city last night at a summer home in Lakemont.

Mrs. Morris, who was 28 years old, operated the Morris Office Service in the C. & S. building, neighbors said.

Morris, who is 32, has been rooming at the Y. M. C. A. on Luckie street, the Y. M. C. A. clerk reported.

Funeral arrangements for Mrs. Morris will be announced by H. M. Patterson & Son.

Because there were witnesses, there will be no inquest, Coroner Paul Donehoo said early this morning.

Think First of America, F. D. R. Tells Citizens

WASHINGTON, May 19.—(AP)—President Roosevelt tonight told newly-naturalized citizens and the 2,000,000 young Americans who have come of age this year that it was their duty always "to think first of America and at the same time to think in terms of humanity."

His message was read by Secretary Perkins at a celebration of New Citizens' Day.

British Batter Hamburg From Dusk to Dawn

Churchill Predicts More Stable Front for the War.

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, May 19.—Prime Minister Winston Churchill told the nation tonight that German and Allied forces were fighting behind each other's lines on the western front.

Thus he described both sides as in "an extremely dangerous position," but predicted "stabilization" of the front "which will enable the qualities of the French and British soldiers to be matched squarely against those of their adversaries."

In a 10-minute radio address, Churchill declared that "mastery can only be regained by a furious and unrelenting assault."

Admits Gravity.

"It would be foolish to disguise the gravity of the hour," he said, predicting the war would turn to the British Isles after this battle in France abates its force.

"For myself," he said, "I have invincible confidence in the French army and its leaders. Only a very small part of that splendid army has yet been heavily engaged.

"There is good evidence to show that practically the whole of the specialized and mechanized forces of the enemy have already been thrown into the balance, and we know that very heavy losses have been inflicted upon them."

Claiming destruction of "three or four" German planes to every one Allied plane lost, Churchill said "the relative balance of the British and German air forces is now considerably more favorable to us than at the beginning of the battle."

Air Raids Extensive.

The air ministry, giving further details of previously reported forays over Germany Friday night, said the raids extended from Hamburg in the north to Sedan, France, in the south.

More than 300 bombs were dropped on oil depots at Bremen, and similar establishments at Hamburg were said to have been bombed from 8 o'clock Friday night to Saturday's dawn. Road and rail bridges across the Meuse river also were reported heavily damaged.

Churchill declared that British planes were "striking mightily" at the source of Germany's mechanized power and had inflicted "serious damage" upon that nation's valuable oil refineries.

(It was believed here that Germany already had made serious inroads on her gasoline supply since it was estimated that from a total of 12 tank divisions she had thrown six into the "bulge" on the French-Belgian front, the United Press said. She was estimated to have 3,000 tanks in action, with the heaviest eating up six gallons to every mile, the medium tanks two gallons and the light ones a gallon a mile. Allied sources said this did not count the heavy drains by supply and transport vehicles.)

Making his first address to the nation as prime minister, the former first lord of the admiralty, speaking quietly and deliberately, said that "we must not allow ourselves to be intimidated by these (German) armed vehicles before our lines."

There is "a serious need for vi-

George and Connally Advocate Triple Industrial Defense Body

Business, Labor, Military Leaders Would Be Members of Proposed Advisory Group Stimulating 'Teamwork.'

WASHINGTON, May 19.—(AP)—Creation of an industrial-labor-military board to seek teamwork in the nation's vast rearmament effort was proposed by two Democratic senators today as congressional committees prepared to speed defense funds and special legislation.

The special legislation, permitting relaxation of New Deal labor legislation and certain profit limitations in naval construction, comes before the house naval committee for formal action tomorrow. Committee members already have indicated informally that they would recommend its passage.

At the same time tomorrow, the full senate appropriations committee will consider the $1,827,491,724 army supply bill which a subcommittee whipped into shape last week. This measure, carrying the army's share of the extraordinary $1,182,000,000 defense fund asked by President Roosevelt, is expected generally to reach the senate floor by Tuesday.

The appointment of industrialists, labor representatives and army and navy officials to a board charged with co-ordinating the production of war equipment was advocated by Senators George, Democrat, Georgia, and Connally, Democrat, Texas. Both are members of the senate foreign relations and finance committees.

George told reporters that industry faced a tremendous expansion and an immense technical task in carrying out the extraordinary defense program.

Saying the board might be established voluntarily without the necessity of legislation, he suggested that it should be given only limited authority to direct not, the Georgian declared, be cloaked with the all-inclusive powers delegated to the World War industries board.

Connally said he thought an advisory board, working under the direction of the President, could be very helpful in co-ordinating the production of essential defense materials.

"Any such board as this should be made directly responsible to the President, as the commander-in-chief, and should not in any way supersede army and navy leaders in determining what defense needs are," he said.

Representatives of more than 40 leading manufacturers of airplanes and engines, meanwhile, headed for Washington to discuss with government officials Mr. Roosevelt's suggestion that the country's warplane production capacity be increased to 50,000 planes a year.

A movement was under way in the house, meanwhile, to confer upon the President the power to suspend operation of the Walsh-Healey government contracts act with respect to contracts for construction of warships.

Chairman Vinson, Democrat, Georgia, of the naval committee, warned against "hysterical" action which might sweep away labor's legislative gains, but asserted that the guarantee of time and one-half overtime pay should be sufficient to compensate workers for abrogation of the 40-hour week provision during an emergency.

Weygand Is Called To Take Command Of Allied Forces

Stop Them, 'Shadow' of Foch Exhorted as He Leads Troops.

By The Associated Press.

PARIS, May 19.—France tonight named an adopted son, General Maxime Weygand, generalissimo of the Allied armies in place of Maurice Gustave Gamelin and called upon him to halt the German blitzkrieg which an official spokesman described as the "greatest offensive of modern warfare."

Weygand, a 73-year-old general, known during the World War as the "shadow" and right-hand man of Generalissimo Foch, was given command of Allied forces in "all theaters of operations" as German light units pounded at the gates of the textile manufacturing city of St. Quentin, 80 miles north of Paris.

French Attack.

French counter-attacks in the Maubeuge region, 15 miles north of Landrecies and within 10 miles of the French-Belgian border, resulted in recapture of a number of positions, a military commentator said.

At the southern extremity of the German thrust into France, the French held their positions and recaptured several villages near Rethel in counter-attacks.

(The French were reported to have recaptured the Sambre river towns of Le Cateau and Landrecies north of St. Quentin, the United Press said.)

Offensive Seen.

(With Weygand in charge, it is expected that the Allies will shift immediately from a war of defense to one of assault in their efforts to crush the Nazi push. Heir of Foch's policy of "l'attaque, toujours l'attaque," Weygand undoubtedly will launch a plan of bold initiative in contrast with Gamelin's extreme caution.

(He will carry out the new Allied military policy which British Prime Minister Winston Churchill said in a radio speech tonight will become one of offensive rather than defensive and which French Premier Paul Reynaud said

Germans Retreating for First Time Since Invasion Started.

By The United Press.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY, May 19.—Huge 70-ton French tanks with blazing cannons have recaptured the towns of Le Cateau and Landrecies, it was reported today, and have driven the Germans back nine miles in their first retreat since the invasion of France nine days ago.

The French counter-drive against the Germans began Saturday night and continued throughout the night and it was difficult to ascertain when Le Cateau and Landrecies were retaken, although the French claimed they were occupied this morning.

British Lines Hold.

In Paris the newspaper L'intransigeant reported that the two towns were recaptured Saturday.

(In London, British general headquarters issued this communique: "The British front was held today successfully in the face of enemy pressure.").

In a smashing battle of tank against tank, the French claimed to have completely checked the German drive at Le Cateau and to be in control of both banks of the Oise river from Maubeuge at the frontier to a point near Saint Quentin.

The German high command claimed the capture of Le Cateau and Saint Quentin. In Paris a military spokesman denied that the Germans had captured Saint Quentin, but admitted that light Nazi detachments might have reached the Saint Quentin region.

Relentless Fighting.

The Paris spokesman said that "furious fighting" occurred throughout the day around Landecies and La Fere to the south of Saint Quentin at the junction of the Oise and Serre rivers with the French tanks counter-attacking strongly at many points. The enemy, he admitted, achieved "slow progress" in the Landrecies-Le Fere region.

French military leaders, pointing out that the German drive was pushed 50 miles beyond the Nazi supply bases, claimed that Germany's tank and motorized col-

French Battle In Makeshift Fortifications

Trenches Hastily Built When Nazis Make Blitz Attack.

(How the German sweep into France might affect her motorized warfare, and how French troops fought behind makeshift fortifications during the first shock of the attack are told in the following article by H. Taylor Henry, former United States army officer, who returned to Paris yesterday from the battle zone.)

By H. TAYLOR HENRY.

PARIS, May 19.—(AP)—Belief that the extension of lines necessary to supply gasoline to the Nazi blitzkrieg machinery as it plunges deeper into France will slow it down automatically was expressed today by French military men.

They also place reliance on the increasing experience of the French troops in dealing with German methods.

To get a true picture of the fighting, French troops must be visualized in hastily built individual trenches, perhaps only a yard deep, or crouched behind stones and hidden in clumps of bushes.

They are not, in the present fighting sector, behind long-prepared ramparts.

Forced into open warfare by the rapidity and unforeseen nature of the German advance, French units had to make preliminary resistance in country they had just commenced to fortify.

Against narrow sections of this line, the Germans sent wave after wave of bombers, which opened the action in the early morning so that the sun at their backs would blind defenders until the planes were on them.

The first warning that a sector chosen by the Germans was under attack came when 300 to 400 bombers dived in successive formations of threes, striking at French positions almost literally from just overhead.

The planes attacked in one wave after the other, aiming with uncanny accuracy at the nests dug out by the French soldiers. By the time the third or fourth wave had dived with its load of bombs, the first wave had wheeled and dived again to spray the line with machine-gun fire.

I have been in sectors dive-bombed and then machine-gunned in the blitzkrieg on the northern front, and I know the effect.

The first several times it is demoralizing. After that one becomes more or less hardened. Now that the first shock is over, the French soldier is holding more firmly.

After the planes came the famed Panzer divisions of tanks, attacking in line almost side by side. These armored divisions are formed of 300 to 400 heavy tanks.

As many as eight to 10 divisions were used on a single narrow sector.

As the tanks rumbled through, they wheeled and struck the neighboring section of the line from the rear.

Behind the tanks, Nazi light infantry divisions poured into the holes, rushing up in scout cars and armored trucks to take over and organize the ground while the planes and tanks went on to strike at ever-widening sides of the pocket.

Through the holes made in the French lines, squads of specially trained shock troops raced on motorcycles, mounted with machine-guns, to dash up and down the highways, firing on the re-forming French troops until they were captured.

The Germans, however, did not have it all their way, even in the initial attack.

Where they tried to break through without preliminary bombing, the drive was smashed on many sectors.

AMERICAN QUEEN—Her majesty, the America, 723 feet of beauty, nears completion at Newport News, Va. Funnels, superstructure, even the lifeboats in place, the new $18,000,000 liner is expected to make her maiden voyage in six weeks. She was built for the United States Lines as part of the marine expansion program.

Weygand Given Command of Allied Troops

last Thursday would lead to "changes in men and methods.")

Use 60,000 Troops.

The fight on the outskirts of St. Quentin was one phase of a German push which the French expected to tell within 24 hours whether the Nazis would drive on toward the channel ports or turn southward down the Oise river valley toward Paris.

In the St. Quentin sector the Germans hurled a motorized army corps, estimated at about 60,000 men at least, into a fierce battle between Guise and Landrecies. The French high command reported tonight that its troops "are opposing stubborn resistance to the enemy" in that area.

Weygand of Brussels.

The high command said Allied fighters and anti-aircraft guns had inflicted heavy losses during attempted bombing raids.

General Weygand, a native of Brussels who became a citizen of France at the age of 20, was taken from his post as commander of the French forces in the Near East to succeed Generalissimo Gamelin just a day after Premier Reynaud put the World War hero of Verdun, Marshal Henri Philippe Petain, in his government as vice premier.

A communique announcing the change said General Weygand was named "chief of the national defense general staff and commander-in-chief of all theaters of operations."

The first began at 2:30 p. m. (8:30 a. m. Atlanta time) with Marshal Petain and the premier. The second opened at 6:30 p. m. (12:30 p. m. Atlanta time) when General Weygand alighted from an official automobile and bounded up the steps two at a time.

An hour later the three men emerged from Reynaud's office, chatted cordially on the porch for a minute and then drove away.

General Weygand was Marshal Foch's chief-of-staff from 1916 until the end of the World War, following the French generalissimo as he was promoted to head the Allied armies in the dark spring of the war's last year.

Man for a Crisis.

Marshal Foch, shortly before his death in 1929, advised a French senator to call on General Weygand if a military peril menaced France and promised that "you will be tranquil."

With Germany hitting the Allied armies harder since dawn, a war office spokesman told of fighting on the edge of St. Quentin and said larger groups of the belligerents were battling "in the woods outside of town."

"Confused and hot," was the way military spokesmen described the battle from the Oise canal to the Sambre river.

German tanks, aviation and artillery were declared joining in "unceasing attacks," although the latest reports from the front at 4 p. m. said the French troops had stopped the Nazi advance at St. Quentin at least temporarily.

However, the battle was admitted to be "up and down" with the advantage seesawing.

"More Confused" in North.

The military spokesman said the situation farther north, in the region of Landrecies, was even "more confused."

Severe combats are continuing in the woods and forests where in several unidentified places French troops have launched attacks with success, it was claimed.

Reports filtered through slowly from the Maubege region, where the French fort still holding out against the German offensive dates from the World War.

In Belgium, he added, the withdrawal of British and Belgian troops was "progressing satisfactorily." The Allied forces in Belgium were said to be dropping back in a maneuver to keep the battle line straight.

The German pocket in France now is about 80 miles wide at its greatest width and varies in depth between 30 and 50 miles. Its deepest penetration is about 75 miles from Paris.

The Germans had cut to the canal paralleling the Oise river nine miles east of St. Quentin and later joining the Oise to the Sambre river.

Slightly farther north between Guise and Landrecies, where the Germans are attacking with massed tanks supported by hundreds of planes and a great quantity of artillery, the battle started again with daylight after waxing furious all through Saturday.

Americans Leave Paris.

On the main Maginot line ramparts from the Swiss border all the way to Montmedy, just below Belgium's southern tip, there was only light fighting today. No change of importance has taken place in that area since the beginning of the low-country blitzkrieg.

Most Americans who could do so and who had remained in Paris through the first part of the war have gone during the last few days to southern France.

The French high command's morning communique, made up of only two sentences, said the fighting continued with the same "relentlessness" which had marked the struggle since the Germans broke through the French defenses near Sedan Wednesday after forging a way through Holland, Belgium and Luxembourg.

Between Guise and Landrecies the Germans are following the usual plan of hurling large bodies of infantry forward through paths cleared by tanks. After forcing a hole in the defense lines, the tanks whip around and attack the French lines from the rear.

The French war ministry spokesman said this strategy is decreasing in value since the French have had experience dealing with it. He said the German progress is much slower than when the tactics first were loosed on the French a few days ago.

Rex Returns to Italy, Passed Up at Gibraltar

NAPLES, May 19.—(AP)—The Italian liner Rex, with a small passenger list, arrived today from New York on schedule, having passed British-controlled Gibraltar without having been halted by the contraband control. It was the first time the Rex had escaped being stopped there since the war started.

Meanwhile, the Italian liner Roma sailed from New York for Italy seven hours late, after causing shipping circles to speculate that the delay might foreshadow Italy's entry in the European war.

Line officials, however, attributed the delay to loading of the 4,000 tons of cargo which the Roma carried in addition to 150 passengers.

Atlantan's Kidnap Story Is Investigated by Police

Atlanta police yesterday were investigating the reported ride-rob holdup of Robert M. Bloss, 27, insurance salesman of a Greenwood avenue, N. E., address who reported two white men kidnaped him Friday morning at Pryor and Decatur streets, and forced him to drive to Chicago.

Bloss, who said he was released in Chicago Saturday night by the two men, told Chicago police that the kidnapers had taken his car, $115 in cash and a $27 check. He is expected to return to Atlanta this morning.

Weygand Won Complete Faith Of Great Foch

Russians Stopped Quickly at Gates of Warsaw by General.

PARIS, May 19.—(AP)—General Maxime Weygand., 73 years old, was ac lose associate of the late Marshal Foch in the World War and was trusted so completely by Foch that he becamek nown as "Marshal Foch's Shadow."

"See Weygand about this," was a by-word at the French general headquarters in World War days, so frequently did Foch use the expression.

General Maurive Gustave Gamelin, predecessor of Weygand as Allied chief in the present war, was a favorite of another French hero of the World War—Joffre. Gamelin is a marvel at detail, map-making and analysis, and Foch once said of him that he remembered every order he had ever received.

Helped Poles.

The French government's regard for Weygand's military ability was so great even in 1918, when Ludendorf was leading the German forces against the British front and toward the channel ports, that Premier Clemenceau ordered Foch to designate him as the French representative in a military council of Allied generals considering the emergency.

Later when the Russians were hammering at the gates of Warsaw, Josef Pilsudski, the Polish marshal, wired the French war office, "Send us Foch or we perish."

Foch told the French minister of war:

"Send them Weygand. He will do just as well as I would."

"Place a battalion here; install a battery of 75s there; protect this crossing of the Vistula; blow up this bridge. Then we will stop them."

Quiets Pilsudski.

As his lecture proceeded he talked louder and finally was shouting. Finally it was said that Pilsudski remarked irately:

"Remember you are speaking to a marshal of Poland. There is only one man in the world from whom I wouldn't resent this talk. He is Marshal Foch."

Weygand repled:

"Marshal Foch never scorned the advice of his staff officers. He invited it. That was what made him a great captain."

"Proceed," said Pilsudski.

In five days the Russians had been driven back.

Two Private Fliers Die In Massachusetts Crash

HUDSON, Mass., May 19.—(UP)—Two members of a private flying club were killed late today when their two-seater plane went into a spin and crashed in a wooded section near Lake Boon.

The victims were Arthur H. Bullard, 38, of Wellesley, and Elmer N. Johnson, 31, of South Sudbury. They had left Marlboro airport about 25 minutes before the crash. Witnesses said the plane was about 200 feet in the air when the fabric on the right wing ripped and the plane went into a spin and crashed.

Pastors Here Base Sermons On War Crisis

Tragedy in Europe Held Result of Repudiating Religion.

Repercussions of the European war resounded in Atlanta churches yesterday, as ministers turned from pure theology to discussions of the crisis facing the world today.

At St. Luke's Episcopal church, where Trinity Sunday was observed, the rector, the Rev. John Moore Walker, spoke on the "Christian Conception of God" in relation to the present troubled state of the world.

"In these days of crisis," he declared, "we have seen the effect of the breakdown in a great nation of allegiance and faith in God, resulting in a breakdown of moral principles, which led to war.

Hitler's Beliefs.

"A man's real beliefs have a profound effect on his conduct in life. Apparently Hitler today can have little belief in the religion of Christianity."

Contrasting the varying conceptions of the Supreme Being held by the atheist, Mohammedan, and Buddhist, Dr. Walker pointed out that the Trinity is the Christian conception of God.

"It is the safeguard of the religion of Christ," he declared.

Speaking on the subject, "When God Calls," Dr. Ryland Knight, pastor of the Second-Ponce de Leon Baptist church, told his congregation.

"God needs all of our resources today. In an hour when whole nations have repudiated Christ, His church, His teachings, it is vital that every man who believes in Him should stand loyal and unfaltering—every man in his place."

Dr. Fuller's Topic.

Dr. Ellis A. Fuller, pastor of the First Baptist church, spoke on the 24th chapter of Matthew.

"When wars become prevalent, you begin to hear sermons announcing the end of time," he pointed out.

"Christ said just the opposite.

"Wars are the inevitable expressions of selfishness, and the result of man's vain desire to gratify his ambitions, greed and lust.

Five Persons in Indiana Killed as Autos Crash

FORT WAYNE, Ind., May 19.—(AP)—An automobile crash in a rainstorm today killed five persons and critically injured a sixth.

The dead are Mrs. Velma Harter, 33, of near here; her two children, Richard, 16, and Joan, 14; and two Fort Wayne Negroes, Robert Hunter, 21, and Wiley DuPree, 23. A third Harter child, Burton, 9, is in critical condition in a hospital here.

Church Decides To Keep Its Name

The Second-Ponce de Leon Baptist church, located on Peachtree road, will retain its name, a conference of church members decided yesterday at the close of regular services.

The action was taken following the report of a committee, headed by Dr. M. L. Brittain, president of Georgia Tech, which had been considering the possibility of a more appropriate name. The committee asked further time, but church members decided to drop the matter entirely.

Fascist Leader's Talk Is Broken Up in Britain

LONDON, May 19.—(AP)—An angry crowd smashed Fascist Leader Sir Oswald Mosley's public address system and broke up a political meeting at Middleton today when he attempted to speak.

Hindsight and Foresight

By HOLGAR J. JOHNSON

President, Institute of Life Insurance

I LIKE to buy from a bakery where the public is invited in to watch all the processes because I know the owners must be proud of their high standards.

This method of putting your business in a show window, as it were, is not unlike the open manner in which the life insurance companies function. I doubt if any business in the country today is more open to public view.

Every company is under the supervision of every state in which it operates. There are regular examinations of life insurance companies, not only to check income and outgo, and assets and liabilities, but to look into company operation and management. And in between these examinations the companies exhibit their affairs to the state departments in sworn statements.

But that's not all. The companies must also stand ready to answer any question that policyholders or state commissioners may ask.

Furthermore, the commissioners of various states hold regular meetings to compare notes and to work out jointly new ideas and safeguards which they believe would be in the public interest.

ABOUT the only thing confidential in the life insurance business is the policyholders' individual policies. Everything else is a sort of glass house open to the view of the public and the state officials from every side.

This is as it should be. Far from being resented, this setup is understood and approved by the companies. They, as guardians of funds which they hold on behalf of the policyholders, recognize that the whole structure of life insurance must be so built that the policyholders can have implicit faith and confidence in it.

NOTE: In this regular Monday column, paid for at advertising rates, the Institute of Life Insurance has asked its president to discuss questions of interest to life insurance policyholders. Inquiries may be addressed to 60 East 42nd Street, New York City.

Refugees End Year of Study At State School

Youths Who Fled Dictators Learn Farming in Carrollton Classes.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

CARROLLTON, Ga., May 19.—Completing their first collegiate year in the United States, three West Georgia College students who fled totalitarianism last fall now are almost fluent in their English, and happier than ever to be free of war-torn Europe. They not only are passing all their studies, but rated "excellent."

However, the voice of 19-year-old Joseph Tobias is edged with sadness as he recalls that he has had only one letter from his parents in dismembered Czecho-Slovakia since last November.

Henry Lindenbaum, 17, and Walter Kornfeld, 18, the other two students attending the college through instrumentality of the National Refugee Committee and the NYA, grew up in the disfigured elegance of Vienna's post-World War days, but rejoice that their parents are in this country.

All three are preparing for practical agriculture and rural teaching. They attend classes during the morning, and work four hours on the college farm in the afternoons. They are specializing in livestock work and hope to find work on a farm when the summer college vacation begins next month.

U. S. State Parks Parley Awarded to Georgia

Georgia's Pine Mountain State Park has been selected as the site for the 1941 annual National Conference of State Parks, Charles N. Elliott, state director of wild life, announced yesterday.

The conference, which will be attended by more than 200 state and national park leaders, will be held the third week in April next year, he said.

Elliott and Eugene Bothwell, state park director, attended the 1940 convention in Indiana last week and were successful in landing the 1941 meeting for this state. Elliott said it will mark the first time the conference has been held in the south, although they have been an annual event for 20 years.

CANDIDATE—Councilman J. Frank Beck, fifth ward, who announced he will run to succeed himself in the September 4 primary, is shown here.

J. Frank Beck Runs Again for Council Seat

Candidate Points to His Record of Service for Past Eight Years.

J. Frank Beck, who has served as alderman and councilman for the past eight years, formally has announced his candidacy to succeed himself in the September 4 municipal primary.

In a "report of my past and present connection with the city government," Beck said he has served on most of the important committees, including the finance, tax, public works, water, library and purchasing. He is chairman of the health and sanitation committee at the present time.

Predicating his renomination campaign on his record, he asserted he has co-operated wholeheartedly with the administration and "have done my part in accomplishing the present improvement in the financial condition and good standing of the city."

"I would only ask any opposing candidate that he specify in what matter I have failed to comply with the responsibilities of the office that I now hold," Beck said. "I ask for the same generous support that I have known in the past, giving the promise to continue to faithfully serve the best interests of the city and the supporting public."

Beck pointed out that he has attended committee meetings regularly, and that as a member of the Grady hospital board for a number of years gave much attention to the operation of Grady and Battle Hill santorium "in assisting to improve the health conditions of the public and to the proper attention and care of our helpless poor."

Grain Market Pegged to Halt Price Plunges

Board Acts Swiftly in Emergency Move With Few Precedents.

CHICAGO, May 19.—(AP)—The Chicago Board of Trade today pegged grain prices to halt the plunge that sent wheat down about 30 cents in six days as German armies crashed through defense lines in Holland, Belgium and France.

In an emergency move with few precedents in modern history, the market acted at Secretary of Agriculture Wallace's request to stop the precipitate price fall, which has reduced the potential market value of this year's wheat crop by around $200,000,000 at present figures.

Directors voted to prohibit trading in grain futures at prices below closing levels Saturday, when wheat tumbled 10 cents a bushel in one of the most sensational collapses of the price structure since the World War.

The "black Saturday" session was the third time within a week that wheat dropped the full 10-cent limit permitted by market rules in one day of trading.

Announcement of the action was made by Fred H. Clutton, secretary of the Board of Trade.

Market officials said other grain exchanges in the nation were expected to follow the Board of Trade's action by establishing minimum prices on their exchanges.

Such pegging of the futures market has been resorted to only twice before since the turn of the century—in 1933 and in 1917.

Four Persons Lose Lives in Road Crashes

One of Them Burned Fatally; Fifth Georgian Near Death.

One Georgian was burned to death and three others killed in a series of week end traffic accidents, the State Highway Patrol reported yesterday.

A fifth person was near death in a Hazlehurst hospital from burns received after an auto accident.

Grady Way, 27, of Wrens.
James Turner Dukes, 18, of Wrens.
Curtis Crosby, 30, of Graham.
Miss Ethaline Moore, of Rising Fawn.

Way and Dukes were killed late Saturday night when the bicycle on which they were riding was struck by a truck one mile north of Wrens on United States Route No. 1. The truck, state patrolmen said, was driven by J. C. Johnson, of Greenwood, S. C.

Crosby was burned to death, and a companion, Ronnie Dyals, 24, of Hazlehurst, was burned critically when their auto left the highway, struck a tree and was destroyed by fire early yesterday morning, six miles west of Baxley on United States Highway No. 341.

Dyals was removed to the Cor-De-Lois hospital at Hazlehurst, where attending physicians said his condition was critical.

State patrolmen said Crosby died in the flaming car, while Dyals was thrown clear when the auto hurtled from the road.

Miss Moore was killed when the auto in which she was a passenger overturned on the Birmingham highway near Trenton, Ga., Saturday.

Madeleine Carroll Seeks Permit for Paris Flight

HOLLYWOOD, May 19.—(AP)—Actress Madeleine Carrol left by airliner today for Washington, D. C., where she said she hopes to obtain permission to take the Atlantic clipper to Lisbon and then go to Paris.

"I want to be with my mother and do what I can for my family during this terrible time," she said.

Miss Carroll said she is caring for 200 war orphans in her French chateau. She plans to visit relatives in London before returning here.

Publishers Go To Texas For Annual Session

Dixie Newspaper Heads Inspect Print Mill at Lufkin.

MINERAL WELLS, Texas, May 19.—(AP)—Meeting in Texas for the first time, members of the Southern Newspaper Publishers' Association from 14 states gathered here today for their 38th annual session, following a tour of inspection of the Lufkin (Texas) paper mill.

Adolph Shelby Ochs, of Chattanooga, Tenn., president of the S. N. P. A., spoke for those who saw newsprint rolling from the Texas mill in a tribute to publishers, scientists and engineers who made the new southern industry a reality.

"Newspaper publishers throughout the south owe a great debt to the group of enthusiastic, dauntless pioneers who overcame many difficulties and discouragements in the establishment of the Lufkin plant," said the Chattanooga publisher.

The three-day publishers' session opens tomorrow with a scheduled address by Governor W. Lee O'Daniel, followed by President Ochs' annual report.

An address on industrial development and regional economic relations in the south will be delivered Tuesday by David E. Lilienthal, director of the Tennessee Valley Authority, who arrived in Texas by plane tonight.

Catholic Must Be Patriotic, Mitchell Says

Church Teaches Men To Bear Arms for U. S., Georgia Clubs Told.

A good Catholic in this country must live up to the Constitution of the United States, Stephens Mitchell, Atlanta attorney, told members of the Georgia Federation of Junior Catholic Clubs in convention here today.

The Catholic church advocates that, Mitchell said, and also teaches its men to bear arms for the country in which they live.

Hugh Marshall, of the Petrine Club, LaGrange, was elected president of the federation, and J. Fred Muller, of the Catholic Young People's Association of Savannah, vice president. Alice Corbitt, of Santa Marie Club, Rome, was re-elected treasurer, and Alice Sutherland, of the Petrine Club, LaGrange, secretary.

The next quarterly meeting of the Georgia group will be held in Augusta in August at a date yet to be selected.

New $750,000 Airport Opened At Savannah

Hunter Field Honors War Hero; Hartsfield Speaks At Exercises.

SAVANNAH, Ga., May 19.—(AP) Honoring its World War air hero, Lieutenant Colonel Frank O'Driscoll Hunter, and celebrating the completion of its $750,000 airport, Savannah today dedicated Hunter Field, climaxing the observance of Aviation Week here.

Colonel Hunter was unable to attend the dedication ceremony, having sailed yesterday for Paris, where he has been made air attache of the United States embassy. However, his sister, Miss Jeanne Hunter, represented him and received a handsome silver plate presented by friends.

Miss Hunter also unveiled a bronze tablet, marking the airport as Hunter Field. Colonel Hunter was lauded for his achievements in speeches by Mayor Thomas Gamble and Brigadier General Travis.

The dedication was the highlight of a full day's program which included stunt flying and an intercollegiate spot landing contest.

Mayor Hartsfield, of Atlanta, who headed a group of civic leaders and businessmen from that city who flew here, was introduced and spoke briefly. In behalf of the citizens of Atlanta, the mayor said he was proud to have the opportunity to felicitate Savannah and its people in the airport dedication.

He praised Savannah for foresight in "acquiring sufficient land for the development of the airport" without having to "condemn land" to expand as Atlanta is now having to do.

H. D. Brannen, State Senator, Dies in Bulloch

Good Roads Advocate Succumbs Unexpectedly; Rites Tuesday.

STATESBORO, Ga., May 19.—(AP)—State Senator Harvey D. Brannen of the Forty-ninth Georgia district, died here unexpectedly this afternoon.

Son of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Brannen, Senator Brannen served this district in both the upper and lower house of the state legislature, and was known throughout the state as a good roads advocate.

He devoted much of his time to furthering highway construction in this part of Georgia, but also gave much time to interests of higher education, particularly the Georgia Teachers' College here.

Senate President John Spivey said he would appoint an honorary escort to attend funeral services set for Tuesday morning, at an hour and place to be announced later.

State Rotarians Meeting Today At Sea Island

Election of New Officers Is Scheduled for Tomorrow

SEA ISLAND, Ga., May 19.—(AP) Music from Barnesville's "Sweet Adeline" quartet and a fancy diving exhibition at the Sea Island pool entertained Georgia Rotarians here tonight as they prepared for the opening business session of their annual convention tomorrow.

Maynard Ashworth, Columbus publisher, had ready his report reviewing his activity as Georgia district governor. The report was scheduled for delivery tomorrow morning.

Other speakers on this year's program include Charles S. Morris, district governor, of New York city, and eastern New York state, and Millard Davidson, superintendent of the Florida Industrial School for Boys.

New officers will be elected Tuesday. The Elberton (Ga.) club sent a large delegation to the convention favoring election of J. Cleve Allen, of that city, to the office of district governor.

Culloden Man Heads Group to Protect Travel

Atlantan Named Second Vice President of State Body.

VALDOSTA, Ga., May 19.—(AP) The 45th annual meeting of the Georgia division of the Travelers' Protective Association was closed here yesterday with the election of Jesse N. Jones, Culloden, as president, and the selection of Savannah for next year's meeting.

Other officers elected were Robert L. Cowart, Waycross, first vice president; Walter L. Richard, Atlanta, second vice president, and Roy W. Blanton, Columbus, third vice president.

On motion, Albert Ehrlich, Savannah, was nominated and elected to succeed himself as secretary-treasurer. This marks the 27th consecutive time he has been elected to that office.

The board of directors elected yesterday included E. Morrison, A. F. Reese, Edgar R. Morrison, P. W. Sirmons, Ben K. Victor, and S. N. Harris, all of Savannah; W. A. Lynn, Atlanta; T. L. Hodges, Atlanta; H. C. Byars, B. W. Sims, and A. L. Plowden.

1918—And Now

Louis Johnson, assistant secretary of war, no longer ago than May 12 reminded this country that, when war was declared in 1917, it took a full year before the United States could put one division in the front lines in France.

Even then, Mr. Johnson continued, American soldiers would have lacked the most essential items of equipment had they not been able to borrow from their Allies. He said:

"When our now famous First Division struck at Cantigny on May 28, 1918, American soldiers went over the top wearing British helmets and carrying British gas masks. Our artillerymen in support came rolling along in caissons drawn by horses belonging to the French government. They computed their ranges and their deflections with French aiming circules and French 'scissors' instruments. They fired French 75s, using French ammunition. Dare we hope that future enemies will again concede us time?"

It looks now that, should future war come to the United States, there will be no friendly Allies to hold the enemy in check for a year or more while we equip ourselves to fight. Which means that, whether the blow comes this year, or next, or five years hence, we must be ready.

Every American should devoutly thank God for President Roosevelt's message on defense needs and for the prompt action of congress in response.

The attitude of congress is the more gratifying in that it is so strikingly the reverse to the previous indifference.

For many months defense has been the outstanding, vital need of the nation. As Bernard Baruch has said, all the world has known the pitiful inadequacy of American arms, except the American people.

President Roosevelt, in his budget message sent to congress in the early days of the session, asked, first and foremost, for more funds for army, navy and air services. But congress, undoubtedly inspired by the thought, in an election year, that there are more votes in the farm and WPA populations than in the army and navy, gave to farm parity payments hundreds of millions more than the President asked, increasing WPA appropriations for the next fiscal year far above the original budget estimates.

And what of appropriations for army and navy, then? Well, the army asked $16,000,000 for the education of American industry in the production of equipment vitally necessary in event of war. Congress gave it $2,000,000.

The army asked 496 additional airplanes. The house, in its wisdom, decided 57 were enough, none of combat type and 37 of them mere training planes.

The army wanted $580,000 for gas masks and $8,800,000 for special machinery for producing vital items of equipment. Congress decided the army didn't need gas masks and could get along without most of the equipment.

Today this country can put in the field less than 100,000 fully equipped soldiers. Of 1,200 critical items of army equipment American industry today can produce, in quantity, less than 100.

General Pershing sounded the warning. He told how woefully unprepared America was in 1917 and declares we are in just as bad, if not worse, state today.

The true American patriot today is the man who demands a preparedness that will make the land of freedom safe, even though the coming attack finds us without allies to hold the first lines of battle, without friendly fleets to guard our oceans and with an enemy that permits no time to prepare, once the conflict has begun.

A Quiet Old Man

Since the German blitzkrieg smashed into, and conquered, Holland all the world has been asking as to the fate of an old man, an inconspicuous, harmless resident of Doorn, named Wilhelm Hohenzollern.

One report has mentioned the old man's name. It stated that the Nazis had given permission for him to live in Prussia, provided he pledged never to assume any activities not proper for a strictly private citizen.

Twenty-five years ago this old man, then known to all the world as Kaiser Wilhelm II, of Germany, threw his gray-clad hordes into Belgium to start the first World War. Four years later he escaped into Holland when the victorious Allies brought his Germany to her knees.

Henry Watterson, editor-publisher of the Louisville Courier-Journal, wrote an editoral during that first World War. He began it with the line, "To hell with the Hohenzollerns and the Hapsburgs!" It was reprinted and quoted from one end of the country to the other.

That editorial expressed the opinion of the world of a quarter century ago about the leaders of the nations, Germany and Austria, which had plunged the world into four years of warfare in which millions died.

While the harmless old man at Doorn has lived his peaceful life, the spirit that the world saw in "the Hohenzollerns and the Hapsburgs," was, it was thought, safely relegated to that hell to which the American editor had consigned it.

But, if the spirit of royal ambitions was crushed, a far worse horror came out the doors of hell than any the world sent in. Today the world faces a horror, personified in the figure of Adolf Hitler, who was an unknown corporal in the armies of the Kaiser, which makes the evil that inspired the former war seem mild in comparison.

Hitler has harnessed a nation to the chariot of Mars. He has regimented its manhood and womanhood, its industry, its science and its very ways of thought, as mere instruments of brutal aggression. He has created a monster that will destroy civilization, unless it is first destroyed itself.

The Kaiser was bad enough, we know, who remember. But compared to Hitler and his ruthless cruelty, the Kaiser was a gentleman.

A Discordant Note

One of the most gratifying facts in regard to the American program for increasing our national defenses is the almost unanimous approval that has been accorded President Roosevelt's message to the congress, delivered last week.

The spirit in which that message was accepted, both by congress and by the nation, constitutes a remarkable demonstration of the unity possible in a democracy when real crisis comes.

Unfortunately, however, there have been one or two voices raised which were slightly out of tune with the rest of the nation. Here and there a partisan politician failed to realize that the nation's safety is of greater importance than any party triumph at the polls, or the retention of any political job.

John L. Lewis, president of the CIO, seriously lowered the standing of his organization in public opinion, as well as injuring his own good repute, when he chose this time to assert that the right to organize of employes in war-equipment industries—specifically, in the airplane industry—must be maintained.

It was, to say the least, in poor taste to issue such a statement.

The right of labor to collective bargaining is so interwoven into the American system it is no longer subject for debate. It is an accepted fact. There is, however, a shortage of skilled mechanical labor which may be serious when this country tries to speed up its war preparedness. To hint, even indirectly, that this shortage could be aggravated by labor troubles, is to hint at something so close to treason it is difficult to tell the difference.

Of course, the rights of labor will always be respected. But labor, like all other Americans, put national security before and beyond all other considerations. The American who would not be willing, nay, anxious, to work 10 or 12 or 14 or 16 hours a day, if his nation's safety needed it, is not fit to be an American.

Labor's rights, social security, hour and wage regulations, living standards—all are of great importance to Americans. But love of country and determination to protect that country against all possible enemies, come first of all.

For all these things, and many others, will have disappeared if we do not keep American freedom and American independence.

Editorial of the Day

A STRANGE DEFENSE

(From The Christian Science Monitor.)

Henry A. Wallace, United States secretary of agriculture, has just made reply to critics of his department's proposal to make permanent its 3½ per cent rate of interest on farm loans. Taking up the imputation that the new Farm Credit Administration will use soft or loose credit policies, he asserts that, "The land banks—several of them—have been dealing in soft credit for years," and asks, "If this is not true, why are 25 per cent of the loans of the system delinquent and why has it been necessary to foreclose on so many farmers?"

The defense is a peculiar one. In effect, it seems to argue that because a situation has been bad the remedy is more of the same thing. It does not seem to occur to the secretary—or to many others—that something could be learned from the experience of overlending on thousands of farms which contributed to land boom speculation some years ago. Instead of drawing the conclusion from land bank delinquency rates that loans should be made more conservatively, his group proposes to make up the deficiency by having the government add its guarantee to the billions of dollars of bonds which would be issued to take up the existing land bank bonds.

A MUNICH FOR AMERICA WASHINGTON, May 19.—In these tragic and terrible days, it clears the mind to recall an old story. Late last fall William C. Bullitt returned from France to report to the President, and found this country in the happy-go-lucky mood in which responsible men could complain of "this phoney war." Bullitt was not one of the small group who, like Charles A. Lindbergh, accurately foresaw the future. But he was at least vaguely aware of what might come, and he was deeply angered by the mood he found.

"The United States," he said bitterly, "is still in the state of mind of England before Munich."

The story had its appropriate sequel when the President read his message to the joint session of the two houses of congress. The details of the scene—the President's tired voice, the suddenly solemn senators and representatives, the tense crowds in the galleries, the women here and there in the crowd who unashamedly wept—are by now familiar to the country. Coming away from the house chamber, a senator who is not often moved to high-flown talk sadly remarked, "Well, we have had our Munich and our Prague in the same week. And now I think it's time we buckled down to preparing for the future."

DEADLY PARALLELS The senator expressed precisely the change that has come over Washington, and it is to be hoped, over the country, in this short time of cruel stress. There is a certain dynamism in a democracy's reactions to events, which makes the behavior of one democratic nation strangely parallel that of another. England and France did not finally awake to their true situation until the harsh facts were flung squarely in their faces, by the German rape of what remained of Czecho-Slovakia. It will be remembered how, only a few days after that event, the present British ambassador in Washington, Lord Lothian, rose in the house of lords to regret that his eyes had not been previously opened by reading the full text of Hitler's "Mein Kampf."

Until this week, there have been plenty of men in high office in Washington, as well as in important positions throughout the country, who preferred hoping for the best to making a realistic assessment of the facts. The late Senator William E. Borah, telling Secretary of State Cordell Hull last summer that he had better information than the State Department, exactly reproduced the gesture of the English leaders who tossed into their waste baskets the intelligence service reports on German air rearmament. Men like Thomas E. Dewey, who continued to say until catastrophe was treading on our heels that we ought to worry only about domestic problems, resembled the English and French politicians who were still hoping for the best when the war burst upon them.

But all that is changing now, and if the European picture worsens as rapidly as seems likely, the change will accelerate proportionally. Radicals and reactionaries, Republicans and Democrats, men wise and foolish, are now beginning to realize that the position of the United States is precarious. The old world, in which we once lived so comparatively comfortably, seems to be disintegrating by the hour. It is necessary to make ready for the possible advent of a new world, in which comfort will be forgotten, and the preservation of the most ordinary decencies of our society must become the sole aim.

THE WAY THE WORLD ENDS This is the central fact among the many harsh facts one is forced to face after talking, in these days, to the men who have the necessary information to form a judgment. Considering that we now have exactly one anti-aircraft gun of the best design, only a few hundreds planes of first-class type, only a few divisions of the army fully equipped to take the field, and a navy only adequate for the Pacific service, the President's defense requests in his messages to congress seem a minimum beginning in the business of making ready for the possible new world. Much more remains to be done, and will have to be done if the possible new world becomes a present reality.

The President, the congress and the country look to be ready for the task ahead. If they are not ready, or if they cannot surmount the many difficulties the task involves, there will be nothing left to do but quote the lines from T. S. Eliot once before printed in this space, when the Munich crisis showed the specter of war to the world. They are:

> "We are the hollow men;
> We are the stuffed men;
> This is the way the world ends,
> Not with a bang, but a whimper."

At least it is to be hoped that we shall not run the risk of seeing our world end with a whimper.

By RALPH T. JONES

We Should Do Something.

Something about this thing called education, I mean. Here we are spending a gosh-awful amount of money on schools and colleges and universities and what do we get? A lot of young folks who are nice and pleasant to look at, good company and apparently cultured people, but every now and then displaying the most gosh-awful ignorance about things on which you'd imagine any child in the fourth grade is well informed.

That's two "gosh-awfuls" in one paragraph, but it's a gosh-awful condition of affairs, don't you think?

Just to illustrate what I mean, let me offer a few examples from real life.

A Young Lady I Like.

One of my acquaintances in the younger set, a most charming and agreeable young married woman, happened to meet me Saturday morning and, quoth she, "Say, Mr. Jones, where is this Anwet or Atrep or something they say the Germans have taken?"

I finally realized she meant Antwerp. And gazed upon her in shocked amazement that anyone with the education supposed to be her's not only didn't know the location of Antwerp, but what's more was mighty uncertain about the name itself.

Then there was the experience several days ago, with another lady acquaintance. Of course, the war was the subject of that conversation, too. It is of all conversations, nowadays. And the talk got around to reasons for the German victories. And I drew her attention to the Nazi superiority, over the Allies, in air strength and attributed their ability to "blitzkrieg" to this factor. And said something to the effect that Germany is so much stronger in the air than any other nation that it is tragic.

And the young lady, quite sincerely and very brightly remarked, "Yes, stronger than anyone except us."

By "us" she meant the United States. With barely a few hundred planes to set against Germany's 30,000!

Example number three.

They are a married couple you could only describe as extremely nice people. The kind it is a privilege to know. And both are of that strata of society that goes to the best schools and colleges as a matter of course.

And the lady was talking—again, about the war. And the things she said were so unreasonable that I couldn't understand, until I suddenly realized she was talking just as would a person who hadn't heard a line of war news for two weeks.

"You haven't been keeping up with the news, have you?" I queried, most politely.

"Well, no," she replied. "What with my clubs and other interests I'm quite busy. I declare I have not had time to look at a newspaper in days. And I never listen to the radio, anyway."

What Can Be Done?

The younger generation, at least, seems to live, nowadays, in a fog of misconception and unconcern that is appalling. They seem to be incapable of understanding anything at all save their own, immediate, personal activities. Utterly self-centered, they live in a woefully circumscribed world of their own and go along, in blissful ignorance, as if the real world didn't exist.

I suspect there are several thousand in Atlanta who couldn't identify Hitler if his name came in a radio quiz program and other thousands who would be puzzled to tell you whether France is in Europe or Asia.

It seems to me it is time that the educators we employ should get a little rough with their pupils now and then. Metaphorically speaking, grab 'em by the scruffs of their respective necks and hold them down to it until they know, at least, simple addition in mathematics and enough geography to have a general picture of the globe in their mind's eye and to know what is being talked about when the names of important places, anywhere on the globe, are mentioned.

Listen to A Quiz Program.

If you think I've exaggerated about the ignorance of the younger generation, listen to one of these radio quiz programs and pick out the youthful individuals questioned. Note their answers and I think you'll agree I haven't exaggerated much.

Now don't bring some prodigy to disprove my words. I'm talking about the average.

Twenty-five Years Ago Today.

From the news columns of Thursday, May 20, 1915:

"Washington, May 19.—President Wilson will await a reply from Germany to the recent American note before making further representations to the Allies on alleged violations of international law in their commercial embargo on Germany."

And Fifty Years Ago.

From the news columns of Tuesday, May 20, 1890:

"This afternoon at four o'clock the old Benevolent home property on Waverly place will be sold at public outcry. The proceeds of the sale will be added to the Grady hospital fund."

Getting Personal WASHINGTON, May 18.—Now wait a minute—just a minute. It is all very well to talk of preparedness for defense in a general way, but this thing is beginning to get personal. It is getting personal to everybody.

General Peyton C. March, who was chief of staff in the first World War, is saying that the problem calls for an army of a million men, which is a fine figure. But what men? Which men? At this point the discussion gets intimate. Does he mean to say that a man has got to throw up his job, which was so hard to get, pack away his civilian clothes, swear away his right to smoke and drink when he likes, stay out as late as he likes and say what he likes about the boss or the President of the United States, and go off somewhere to live in a wooden shed with a hundred total strangers and no privacy, dig holes all day and wear a suit that is practically nothing but brown overalls, and never speak out of turn and always say, "Sir," to the boss?

Does he mean that a young fellow in college who has been running a temperature about a dream number whose picture is on his dresser has got to drop out and join the fellow who has quit the job, in the same restricted conditions? Are these million men to be actual individuals or just theoretical men without identity or personality or private plans and ambitions? And will they include men above the arbitrary, theoretical age limits according to the recent suggestion of Colonel Bill Donovan, late of the 69th, New York, who holds that fitness, not age, should be the first consideration? Why not?

Subpoenaed, Not Invited It begins to seem that the million men are to be actual individuals with personality and all that, and not just "they." And because you won't get a million fit volunteers just by blowing bugles, they will be subpoenaed, not invited.

But this is nonsense. They can't do that. This is a free country and not at war. Free, in a way, and not at war, either in a way, but getting ready to fight a war if the Germans and the Italians smash the Allies, and after pausing a while to pull themselves together, start messing around on this side of the Atlantic. The Germans and Italians are great hands to slug people who make the mistake of regarding them as friends and neglecting to go thoroughly armed at all times, and they do admire South America.

It all seems so unnecessary. This country wants no part of Germany or Italy. Couldn't the government just send them a written guarantee that this country positively will never attempt to take any part of Germany or Italy or attack either of them, and just wants to rock along? Maybe, but there were half a dozen countries in Europe which gave and lived up to the same guarantee, and the Germans and Italians ganged them, anyway. It is a man named Hitler who decided when other people must abandon their homes, their hopes and their lives for war. Hitler and an ex-Communist named Mussolini. They are the ones who have decided that a million personal, individual Americans, to use General March's figure for a starter, will have to drop everything pretty soon and go soldering.

It's Their Decision Their decision gets personal in other ways, too. It makes it practically useless for Americans here in their own homeland and bothering nobody to make plans for their personal future. Their earnings and savings will be skimmed and skimmed to pay taxes or buy bonds to pay for uniforms and guns, airplanes and tanks, ships and shells and great military camps just at a point when it seems that the old system can't stand another ounce of strain. Nobody knows, but everybody is entitled to a guess at what that means.

One guess which worked out in other countries is that it will mean that everybody who has anything will wind up with nothing, and that those who have nothing will still have nothing. This phase of it is deeply personal, too, although not as physical as the affair of the million men and, perhaps, a second, third and fourth million.

There are some, not many, who think it would be better to do nothing at all about it, and send Hitler and Mussolini a note saying we will hold them responsible before the public opinion of the world and before God if they kill unarmed, defenseless Americans and conquer the United States. It might work, but it seems a very chancy way of dealing with the problem, because it has been tried before without success. Hitler and Mussolini say they are world opinion, and they say there ain't no God.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH McGILL

PETAIN IN COMMAND When the news came on Saturday afternoon that France had recalled Henri Philippe Petain, the savior of Verdun, I thought of Jules Romains' "Verdun."

Romains writes on and on. "Verdun" is merely one bound section of one great book, "Men of Good Will," all of which has not been written. Part of it is magnificent and this book, "Verdun," which contains two volumes, "The Prelude" and "The Battle," will lift your hair and make the mind recoil.

There is in it, briefly, the story of the recall of Marshal Petain. The exultant Germans were driving on. The war was, they said, nearing an end. France was in grave danger.

The change then came with the same dramatic suddenness as that of Saturday afternoon. Joffre, frightened out of his calm by the retreat, and finding the situation in confusion, advised calling Petain.

Petain was summoned to Chantilly where Joffre gave him his instructions in two words: "Save Verdun."

Without waiting Petain went to Verdun. He halted at Souilly, set up temporary headquarters in the mayor's house, examined the map, studied the order of battle, put through telephone calls and in the course of one evening modified the entire defensive organization. In one evening he restored order out of confusion, began demanding large supplies of airplanes and artillery, got them, and, as it turned out, saved Verdun.

Part of the time he directed the long battle from his bed, shaken with fever and chills. Part of the time he sat about a kitchen table in a French farm house.

His coming gave the troops better morale.

"THE CLASS OF '16" A friend of mine, who was an officer in four great offenses after the United States entered the first World War, told me a gruesome story. There are many such, of course.

This one came back to me on reading "Verdun." That book, which largely is factual, told of the class of '16 being called to the colors and flung into the front at Verdun just as France today is flinging all she has got into the front.

They were not trained. They were, of course, frightened. Two companies of them were used in a counter attack. As they waited an old officer told them stories, got them calmed. As they went out he started them singing the Marseillaise.

Ten men of two whole companies reached the objective.

This American officer was cursing the well-meaning who do not want military training in schools. More than those, even, he cursed, in futile fashion, those who think we can wait until war comes to train our men.

"I recall," he said, "that one night we received some replacements. They were youngsters from Texas and Oklahoma. They were big, fine boys of about 18 or 20, fresh from the farms. The United States had been forced to hurry them to France. They were supposed to go in reserve for training. But France and England were beaten when the United States troops got there. These boys had been trained but a few weeks.

"That next morning there was a gas attack. Later in the day, by pure chance, I saw some of the dead. They had got most of my big, strong farm boys, not one of which knew how to fit and use his gas mask. So," he said, after a pause, "when I hear some person talking against military training and against preparing for war in time of peace, I just walk away. Else, in the name of those dead boys who didn't even get to stop a bullet, I surely must smash those well-meaning persons in the face.

"WHY VERDUN STILL STANDS" One reason why I keep hoping for Allied victory is one closing chapter in the book "Verdun." Jerphanion is speaking of those in the trenches:

"There is the young officer who says, 'If France is conquered, life will be impossible' . . . another example is the reservist who says, 'This is the war to end war. Thanks to our sacrifice our children will be spared knowledge of such horrors.' Standing next to him in the same trench will be the fellow who thinks, 'This is the end of the world. What does it matter?' Another there believes in a coming reign of justice; that victory for the democracies will mean freedom for the oppressed everywhere in the world. There is the sentimentalist . . . who argues, 'Most of my friends are dead. What does it matter if I go?' There's the man whose wife left him as soon as he was called up, who ran off with someone else, who would just as soon be dead. There is the man who exists in a world of dreams. 'Everything is predestined,' he says. 'No use fighting against fate.' There is the man who has never had a chance, who relished the equality bred of common misery. Close beside him is a pessimist who thinks sincerely, 'The universe is a foul absurdity. Humanity is the work of the devil, born for murder and self-slaughter.' There is the fanatical Catholic who thinks, 'This is God's punishment wrought on a corrupt and faithless generation . . .' There is the gentle Catholic who, when night falls, says his prayers very quietly in his shell hole, and murmurs, 'Let me suffer, as You suffered, Jesus mine . . . Give me strength that I may not be unworthy of You.' Finally, there is the man who says: 'All that matters to me in this world is the language of France, the cathedrals of our French countryside, the quays of the Seine, landscapes that can be found nowhere else in the world, a way of life that is unique. If all that is to be taken away, life has no longer any point. If, by dying, I can insure that all these things will live after me, then death is right and proper' . . . Trench after trench of such men, thinking such thoughts—that is why Verdun still stands.

It Is Bitter Bread That Feeds A Man at the Price of His Self-Respect

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

When Agnes Newton Keith sailed for Borneo with her new English husband, she watched the shores of America recede from sight and then said: "I am doing what I would rather be doing than anything else in the world, with the person I want to do it with."

Since she felt that way about it, nobody is surprised when she adds four years later that her feelings haven't changed.

Her way of life might not appeal to others, but for her it provides the ultimate in earthly bliss. Fate has given her the two blessings that are the foundation stones of human happiness—an occupation she enjoys, and a comrade.

Every man, of high or low degree, must get happiness from his work and his comrade or never know what happiness is.

And work is more necessary than comradeship; for while he can be happy alone if he is fascinated by his job, his comrade cannot keep him happy if he is bored by idleness.

Women resent this truth, and each is jealous of her husband's work because it seems to mean more to him than she does; but it would be as sensible to feel hurt because he prefers food to kisses when he is gripped with hunger. He cannot change his nature.

Man is doomed to eat his bread in the sweat of his brow, and he is so constituted, whether by nature or inheritance, that he cannot be content unless he has an occupation that gives him entertainment and ministers to his self-respect.

Therefore a certain degree of poverty is essential to his happiness and his moral health as well; for while he cannot be content in idleness, he has long regarded labor as a curse and cannot reconcile himself to it unless he is driven by necessity. Having coveted and longed for leisure, he will have it if he can, no matter how much it hurts.

Machinery was supposed to bring men the blessing of leisure, but the blessing threatens to be a curse. If a machine will do the work of ten men, we cannot reject it without violating reason. If the machine is discarded in order that men may do the work by hand, they feel shamed and ridiculous. Yet if the machine does the work, they must starve or live on public money obtained by taxing the machine.

A solution of the problem can be found, but not by violating man's right and need of an occupation that makes him feel useful and respectable.

Ozburn Enters Race for Seat In City Council

Vice Chairman of Party Committee To Oppose Marler in Primary.

James T. Ozburn, vice chairman of the city Democratic executive committee for the past four years, and prominent in civic and political circles of West End, has announced his candidacy for council from the fourth ward subject to the primary, September 4.

He will oppose Councilman John T. Marler, incumbent.

For more than 30 years, Ozburn has been affiliated with the same business establishment.

"I believe the city should be conducted like any large business and that representatives of the people should give the same careful attention to its administration that is expected of executives in private life," Ozburn said. I shall do my utmost to see that the municipality is conducted on sound fiscal principles and that tax money is not expended uselessly or recklessly."

Ozburn is a 32nd degree Mason, a charter member of the West End Business Men's Association and several other civic organizations.

Gallup Trial Heat Discloses G. O. P. Candidate 58-to-42 Choice; Prosecutor Heavy Favorite in Northern and Middlewestern States.

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP,
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

PRINCETON, N. J., May 19.—With Postmaster General James A. Farley reputedly holding a substantial number of second-choice pledges from various delegations to the Democratic National Convention, the question has arisen in the minds of Washington observers and political experts as to how well Farley would run.

While Mr. Farley has not, of course, been given the buildup which would follow if he actually obtained the Democratic nomination, trial heat studies just completed by the American Institute of Public Opinion indicate that he would trail Thomas E. Dewey—one of the leading GOP candidates—in a presidential election at the present time.

The Gallup Poll

In a hypothetical race voters in the 48 states were asked: "If Dewey runs for President on the Republican ticket against Farley on the Democratic ticket, which one would you prefer?" The replies were:—

| | |
|---|---|
| Favor Farley | 42% |

* * *

Approximately one person in seven (15%) said that he was undecided about his choice in such a contest.

The present study is the eighth in a series of trial heats which have been conducted in recent weeks. Preceding tests showed Roosevelt, Hull and Garner leading various Republican opponents by margins of from 60-40 to 51-49.

In all discussions of the strength of a Farley candidacy, political observers have been quick to trace a parallel with the campaign of Al Smith in 1928. Interestingly enough, Smith lost to Herbert Hoover by exactly the same margin as is indicated in the present Dewey-Farley survey.

* * *

But the survey shows that—unlike Al Smith—Jim Farley would run up a big majority south of the Mason-Dixon line. It is not Farley's weakness in the south but rather Mr. Dewey's comparative strength in the north and middle west which account for the result shown today.

| | Favoring Farley | Favoring Dewey |
|---|---|---|
| New England | 38% | 62% |
| Mid-Atlantic | 39 | 61 |
| East Central | 36 | 64 |
| West Central | 38 | 62 |
| South | 63 | 37 |
| West | 40 | 60 |

In the Smith-Hoover election of 1928 Al Smith received only 48 1-2 per cent of the vote in the 13 southern states.

Grain Supplies Seized By Finnish Government

HELSINKI, May 19.—(AP)—The ministry of supply today confiscated all grain in Finland to conserve food supplies depleted in the war with Russia. The ministry announced that bread ration cards would be distributed next week. All stores of private grain must be declared.

Good Morning--By Louie D. Newton

President Roosevelt's address last Thursday, the ablest statement the President has made on any subject in a long while, has served to bring the people of our nation to clearly appraise the implications of the present world situation. Instead of creating a frenzied state of mind, I believe the President's address will help our people to gain an essential state of poise.

The question that now emerges for those of us in the ranks—a question already pressing for answer—is: What can I do? What is my duty in the light of the facts disclosed by the President?

For my own part, I find one answer: I can pray. Believing, as I do, that prayer is the way to find God's will and that God's will is the one essential factor in all reckonings, I am resolved to wait in His presence for guidance in these testing days.

That does not mean that I shall cease to listen to others, to read what others have and are writing, to work at the tasks at hand. Not at all. One would not forget that this is a day when we must review the past if we are to interpret the present and chart the future, nor would one discount the suggestions from those in position to have first-hand facts in the current life of the troubled world. Not at all.

But I believe more firmly today than ever before that "This is our Father's world," and I believe that He has a program for His trusting children—the only program that will work—and that He will reveal this program to any and to all who will seek His will. That is why I believe prayer is the one way of effective response to the present crisis.

One recalls how Washington knelt in prayer at Valley Forge, how Woodrow Wilson called a nation to prayer in the dark days of 1918, and how through all the ages great issues have been met and mastered when God's people waited in His presence. History attests this blessed fact—the history of the ages.

Seeking God's will lead us again to His Book. Its promises are new for every day. "If any of you lack wisdom, let him ask of God, Who giveth to all men liberally, and upbraideth not, and it shall be given unto him. But let him ask in faith, nothing wavering." James 1:5-6. Alongside this promise may be placed countless others, equally reassuring for the individual and for the nation.

Our greatest danger right now is worry. There is no form of sin more deadly and deadening than worry. And the one sure cure for worry is prayer. Men of prayer are men of power. If we fail to pray, we guarantee failure in whatever we undertake to do. Therefore, let us pray.

Salvation Army Plans Honors for Mothers

Mothers of members of the graduating class of the Salvation Army Southern States Training College will be presented the symbol of membership into the "Order of the Silver Star" at the graduation exercises at 7:45 o'clock next Monday in the Baptist Tabernacle.

The "Order of the Silver Star" was inaugurated by General Evangeline Booth when she was the active international leader of the organization as a token of appreciation to those mothers who have given a son or a daughter to be an officer in the Salvation Army.

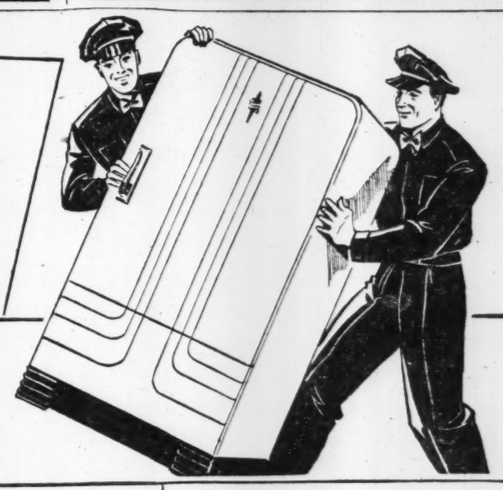
QUESTION 1:

"What make of refrigerator do you expect to buy next time?"



Poll shows the swing is to the gas refrigerator . . . the only "automatic" that freezes silently with NO MOVING PARTS!

1 "You bet we're getting silence this time," says one woman. "Servel simply can't make a noise. After our experience with another make, that's all we need know to want the gas refrigerator!"

2 "No wearing parts for us in our new Servel," answers another couple. "You see, a tiny gas flame does the work of moving parts in its freezing system . . . so there's nothing to lose efficiency . . . even after years of use."

3 "Savings are important, too . . . in helping us to decide," says a thrifty housewife. "And friends who've had their gas refrigerator for nearly ten years say it runs for as little now as when new—a few cents a day!"

4 "I want conveniences, too . . ." decides another woman. "The most modern there are . . . and from what I've seen of Servel, that's the refrigerator for me. It just seems to have everything I want in it!"

The SERVEL ELECTROLUX Gas Refrigerator

5 "Change to Servel!" That's the vote of the majority in this poll . . . and from coast to coast. People who've had experience want its permanent silence and all the other advantages of its freezing system with no moving parts. And they know gas refrigeration alone can give them these things. Whether it's to be your first or your second . . . before buying, see the 1940 models now, and get the full story of Servel's silent freezing.

Summer Furniture AVAILABLE IN ATLANTA

It's a far cry from the day when a porch rocker, a hammock, and a grass rug constituted summer furniture. For now (and particularly this season) summer furniture is so smartly beautiful that just looking at it almost makes you want to move to the tropics so you can use it all year-round! Atlanta's furniture merchants have completely covered the markets . . . they have summer furniture that is dramatically styled, refreshingly comfortable, moderately priced . . . We suggest you visit the local furniture merchants for bright ideas to make your days at home this summer as full of fun as a vacation!

Rattan goes Victorian in a graceful, charming way. You'll like the new tropical finish, too! Love-seat and channel-back chair shown are upholstered in a luscious combination of beige, coral and fawn sail-cloth.

Here's an ideal solution to the overnight guest problem at your summer cottage . . . a chaise lounge that lets down to form a comfortable cot. The mattress comes in red or blue or green sailcloth, and lures you to loafing!

These photographs were made by The Atlanta Constitution. All merchandise was furnished by Atlanta furniture merchants.

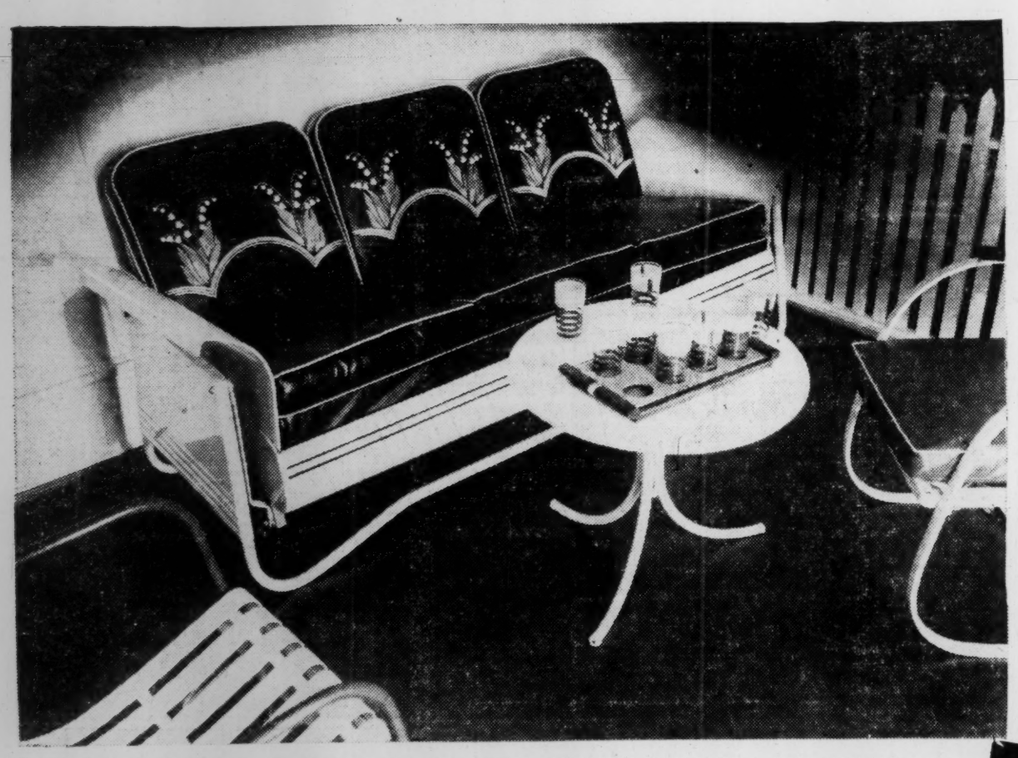
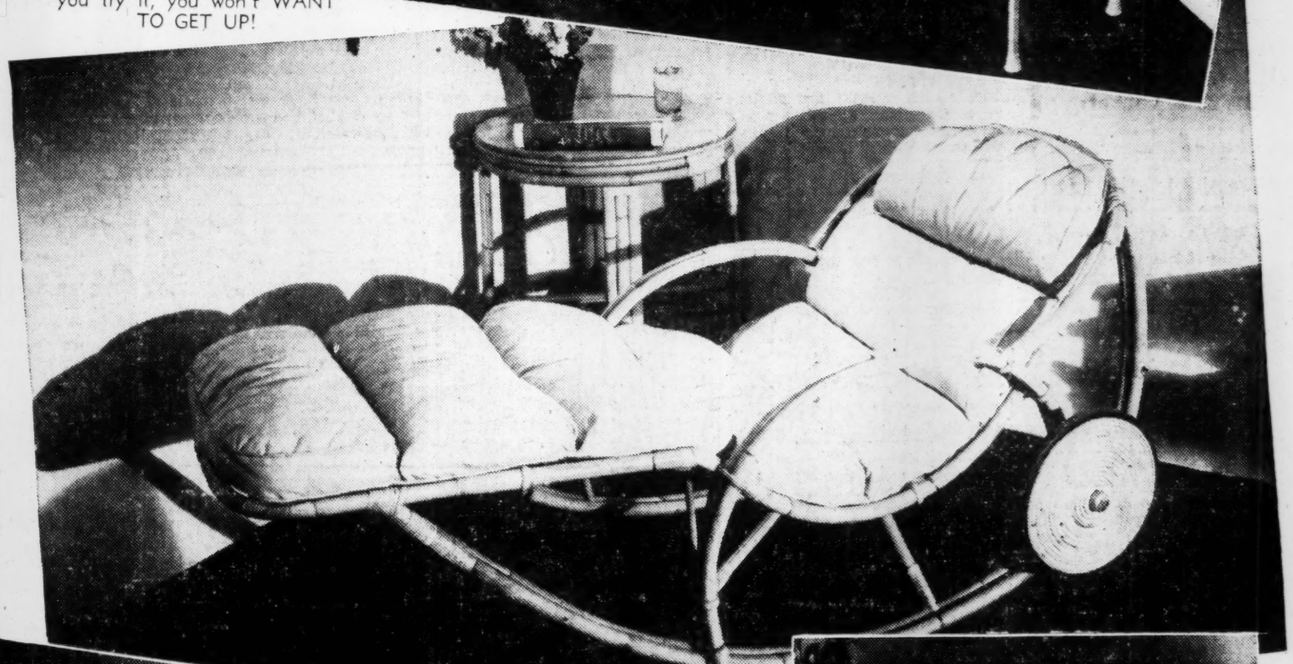
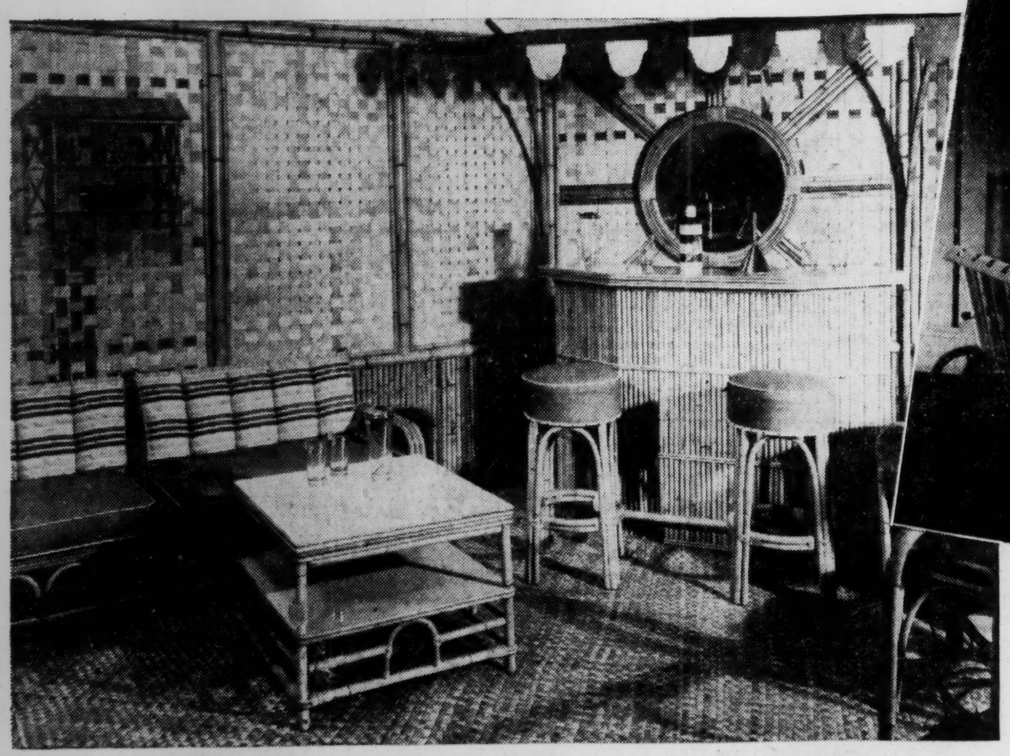
Right—Lunch or dine on your terrace, from a glass-topped table that might have stepped straight from ALICE IN WONDERLAND! The white wrought iron scrolls meet under the glass to hold a flower pot . . . the side chairs have comfortable water-proofed cushions.

Relax in the sun or loaf in the shade. This clever wheeled chaise with its luxurious kapok-filled cushion can be moved anywhere! Use it indoors or out . . . but once you see it, you'll want to try it, and once you try it, you won't WANT TO GET UP!

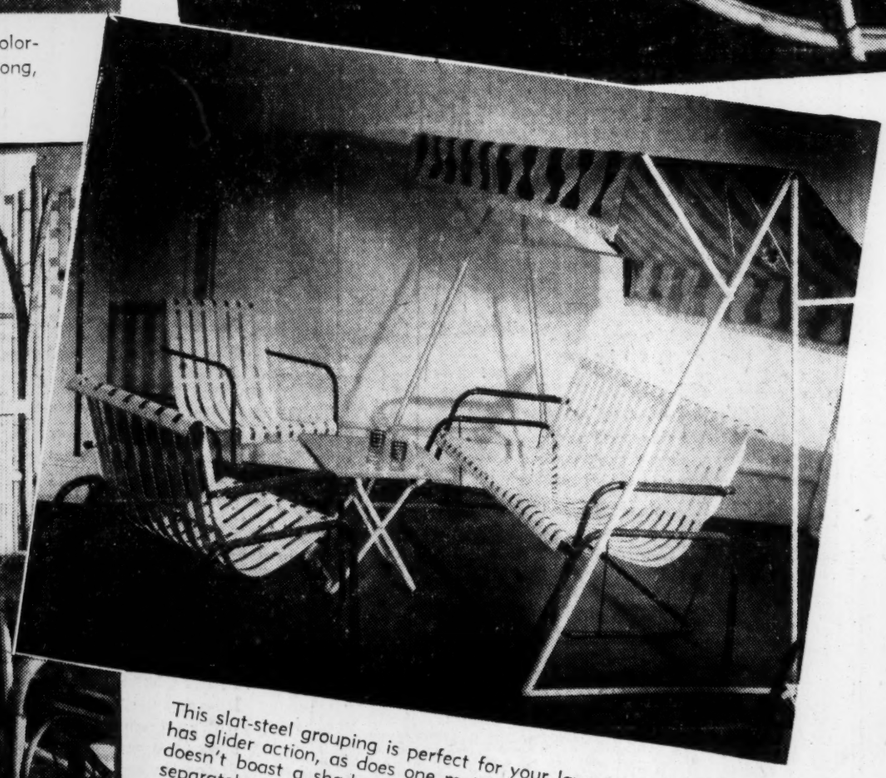


For the BIG piece on your porch or terrace, choose a white metal panel-front glider, with colorful water-repellent cushions. Then pull up the white metal cocktail table, and reach for a "long, tall cool one" from a gay banded glass!

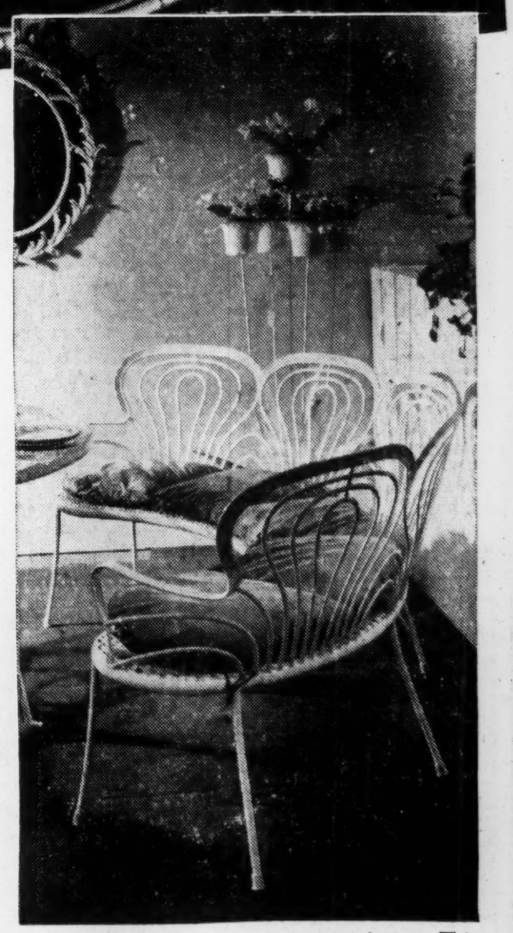




Does your playroom look a little winter-worn? Here's a grand, cool summer suggestion for your gayest moments! A new tropical finish on this rattan grouping . . . simply styled, but simply ELEGANT! Whether you're serving lemonades or juleps, the bar invites thirst and compliments!



This slat-steel grouping is perfect for your lawn. The settee has glider action, as does one matching chair. If your lawn doesn't boast a shade-tree the red-and-white canopy comes separately.



Decorator's choice for this season is wrought iron. This curved settee is part of a dining group which can also be used separately. It's a perfect garden companion, for the bright coral cushions are water-repellent.

Sterling Says Send Allies All Planes Possible

Rear Admiral Lists Steps U. S. Should Take for Defense.

By REAR ADMIRAL YATES STIRLING JR.

(Copyright, 1940, by United Press.)

NEW YORK, May 19.—The gravity of the situation created by the events in Europe should be patent to all of us.

Our ability to defend ourselves must be immediately and greatly increased.

In my opinion the following steps are called for and the greatest possible speed should be used in carrying them out:

1. We should supply the Allies with every possible airplane that we can produce even if we have to weaken our own air defenses, temporarily, to do so.

2. Our fleet should remain in the Pacific because of possible developments in the Far Eastern situation. It is not advisable nor safe to weaken the fleet by detaching part of it for service in the Atlantic. The protection of the United States' Atlantic Seaboard must be left, for the time, to the navies of the Allies so long as these navies can resist the onslaughts of German air power.

3. The President is right in setting a goal of 50,000 planes a year for our national production. That production must be systematically and carefully planned.

4. The conquests of Norway, Holland and Belgium have made clear the part which "fifth column" groups play in modern warfare. There is ample evidence that we have potential "fifth column" organizations in this country who might betray us if we were attacked. Immediate measures to draw the fangs of these serpents should be enforced.

5. In order that some of our naval strength can be made available in time of crisis outside the Pacific ocean, and to reinforce our fleet in that ocean should conditions require, we should build at once four more battleships, four aircraft carriers, six light cruisers, 84 destroyers and 47 submarines. There is also need for a squadron of heavy armored cruisers if it should prove true that Japan is building such vessels mounting 12-inch guns. The cost of these vessels would be about a billion dollars.

6. We should at once begin the construction of new shipyards, probably at government expense. Our present yards are not adequate to handle the naval building program which we need.

If you want to keep it a secret don't put it in The Constitution's Want Ads.

Churchill Says More Materials Of War Needed

tal muntions," he said, predicting that after the current warfare in France "there will be a battle in these islands."

He mentioned that his address came "in a solemn hour for the life of our country and of our own power, of our Allies, and, above all, of the cause of freedom."

Nazis Break Through.

"The Germans by remarkable combination of their bombing and heavily armored tanks have broken through the French defense north of the Maginot line, and strong columns of their armored vehicles are ranging the open country and for the first day or two met without defenders.

"But a sudden transformation of the scene might come into being . . . but it would be foolish to assume that a well-equipped mechanized force such as ours could be overcome in a few weeks by such a swoop.

"The relative strength of the air forces is considerably more in our favor than at the beginning of the battle. Our heavy bombers are striking nightly at the supply bases of German power."

Positions Dangerous.

In his warning against "intimidation" by German armored vehicles "in unexpected places behind our lines," Churchill said:

"If they are behind our front, the French are also at many points fighting actively behind theirs. Both sides are therefore in extremely dangerous position.

"If the French army and our own army are well handled, as I believe they will be: if the French retain that genius for recovery and counter-attack for which they have so long been famous; and if the British army shows the dogged endurance and solid fighting power of which there have been so many examples in the past, then a sudden transformation of the scene might spring into being."

Small Part Invaded.

Churchill said that "only a small part" of France had been invaded.

Meantime Great Britain urgently called skilled workmen for her warplane industry today and transferred 10,000 children from eastern and southern coastal towns.

Back of both moves was the fear of aerial blitzkrieg from German bases just across the North sea in conquered territory of the Netherlands and Belgium.

The air ministry said that at least 20 German planes were shot down by British fighters ranging the western front and Germany's western interior, and that R. A. F. bombers had destroyed oil and fuel tanks at Hanover.

Flames from Bremen oil reservoirs shot up 2,000 feet, pilots said, lighting the countryside for 50 miles and covering the city in a deep blanket of smoke.

After dropping 300 bombs in the five-hour attack, the planes turned for home as other fires popped into view among oil tanks.

Men behind machine guns, sand bags and barbed wire entanglements guarded the nation's "nerve centers" against attack by "fifth columns" or troops carried by air or both.

Britain's "most urgent" need of this hour, declared Lord Beaverbrook, new minister of aircraft production, is more airplanes. He appealed to men who know how to assemble aircraft to report to the nearest factories "at once."

His call was addressed particularly to garage mechanics. Beaverbrook said "a large number of fitters is immediately required."

The air ministry soon afterward issued an urgent call for women, some to cook, some to sew balloon fabric, and others to do "special confidential duties."

The migration of children from threatened coastal towns to new reception areas in Wales, considered less liable to bombing, was their second since the war started last September. They had been moved to the coast from London and other big population centers.

The children, carrying hand baggage and one-day rations, moved in 16 special trains, none of which passed through London. All were due to reach Wales tonight.

Accounts from the coastal centers pictured the farewell between the city-bred youngsters and the local children, whose school rooms they had shared, and the older residents of the towns, who had served as their temporary foster parents.

Wounded Are Returned.

Farewell slogans had been chalked on the walls of the towns and residents loaned their automobiles to carry the children to the stations.

The railways offered another gripping spectacle of Britain at war—two trainloads of wounded from the British expeditionary force on the western front rolled into the provinces from a British port.

The admiralty and other Whitehall buildings were rimmed with barbed wire barricades, and logs were piled along country roads ready to slow the march of any invader by land.

THE ALLIES TURN—Hitler's war machine, attempting two great drives across northern France, yesterday was reported to have been smashed back nine miles by 70-ton French tanks in the Lecateau and Landrecies sector (3). French claimed recapture of the two towns. The spearhead of the German drive was at St. Quentin (1), which Berlin said was captured although French denied this but admitted light Nazi forces might have reached the region. Persistent fighting took place in the vicinity of Laon (2). Northwest of Montmedy (4) the Germans said they had captured a Maginot line fort. In Belgium, the invaders reported their troops advancing west of Antwerp toward Ghent (5). British said their forces were holding.

Nazis Capture Fortification in Maginot Line

Berlin Says Allies Lose Ground Along French, Belgian Fronts.

BERLIN, May 19.—(AP)—The Allies, under heavy German pressure, were said tonight to be losing ground all along the Belgian and French fronts, having yielded more than 100,000 prisoners and suffered heavy casualties.

As Adolf Hitler's mighty war machine rolled southward into France and westward toward the North sea coast facing England, Nazi military experts were elated particularly by capture of "Fort 505" in the Maginot line.

Seizure of the fortification "in the fight northwest of Montmedy" was reported in the high command's communique.

Taken by Storm.

DNB, official German news agency, described the fortification as one of France's strongest and indicated it was taken by storm.

Attacking Germans threw their full force at the fort despite heavy defense fire, DNB said, in contrast to the sudden German capture of Fort Eben Emael in Belgium by use of a new, secret weapon.

Hitler, meanwhile, erased another Versailles "dictate" by reincorporating into Germany the Eupen-Malmedy-Moresnet territory lost to Belgium in the World War settlement.

110,000 Prisoners.

The high command, reporting rising numbers of Allied prisoners and increasing quantities of captured war booty, declared that "up to now, not counting the Dutch army, prisoners number 110,000, and countless artillery up to 28-centimeter (11-inch) guns have been captured."

Allied losses also have been heavy, DNB said, particularly because of air and tank attacks on retreating columns. On the other hand, it reported, German losses during the lightning advance have been "relatively small."

In contrast to the World War, when, in the same area, positions were open and fought over for weeks, the agency explained, in this war even the most formidable obstacles simply are being overrun.

St. Quentin Spearhead.

It admitted, however, that heavier losses may have been necessary at certain isolated points.

One enemy plane was shot down during an Allied raid Saturday night on Hamburg, DNB reported. No damage was done, there were no injuries, and the raiders were chased away, it said.

After striking deeply toward the heart of France with motorized, armored units paced by the air fleet, the high command reported, the Germans moved up heavy forces along an expanded 55-mile front with its spearhead in St. Quentin.

"60 Miles From Paris."

The German communique said the Germans held St. Quentin as an arrowhead whose flanges stretched northeast through Le Cateau and Maubeuge and southeast on a line north of Laon to Rethel.

Paris still was 60 miles beyond the deepest Nazi penetration.

On the northern Belgian front, the high command said the Germans were driving the Allies back in a march to the sea.

After the fall of Antwerp and Brussels, it reported, the advance continued toward the Belgian city of Ghent, about 25 miles south of the nearest point on the North Sea coast, with the Nazis beyond the Scheidt river west of Antwerp and at the Dendre river sector west of Brussels.

Twenty Allied tanks were destroyed when the Germans turned anti-aircraft artillery on them at point blank to beat off an armored car attack southwest of Brussels Saturday night, DNB, official German news agency, declared.

Further consolidating the Nazi conquests in the Low Countries, Hitler appointed Arthur Seyss-Inquart, who had been deputy governor of German-occupied Poland, as Reich's commissioner for the Netherlands.

Hitler made a specific point of his treatment of the Belgian territories, pointing out that they were not being regarded as "occupied enemy land."

Returned to Reich.

His decree, dated May 18, read:

"The territories separated by the Versailles dictate from the German Reich and incorporated in Belgium again are in German possession.

"Inwardly, they always have remained bound to Germany. They therefore should not be temporarily regarded and treated as an occupied enemy land.

"I therefore now decree:

"First, the territories of Eupen, Malmedy and Moresnet, cut off from the German Reich by the Versailles dictate, are again part of the German Reich;

"Second, the referred to territories will be attached to the Rhine province (governing the district of Aachen);

"Third, I reserve to myself directions for carrying out this decree."

Shot "By Turns."

Military sources, in a partial summary of how the Allies allegedly lost 147 planes said 20 French Moane pursuiters were shot down "by turns" in an air battle with German Messerschmitts near Tournai yesterday. German losses in this fight were put at six.

In another air combat 12 enemy planes were sent crashing to earth.

At a French airport at Vitry en Artois, the report said, German bombers surprised a great number of French planes tanking up, and at least 50 were destroyed, it was declared.

Mayor Selects Van Houten for Hospital Board

Council Will Be Asked To Confirm Appointment Today.

City council this afternoon will be asked to confirm the appointment of William Van Houten, prominent Atlanta labor leader and Georgia Tech instructor, as a member of the Grady hospital board of trustees.

His name will be submitted by Mayor Hartsfield to succeed Leon Wofford, former member of the board who resigned when business connections took him out of the city.

Van Houten was selected by the mayor from a list submitted by the Atlanta Federation of Trades. He will be labor's representative on the board—a custom instituted by Mayor Hartsfield at the beginning of his administration.

Well known to thousands of Georgia Tech graduates as foundry instructor—a position he has held for 52 years—Van Houten is a former president of the Atlanta Federation of Trades and is now secretary-treasurer of the Labor Temple Association.

When his appointment is confirmed, he will take office for a four-year term. Other members of the board are Thomas K. Glenn, chairman; Kendall Weisiger, James L. Wells and Edwin R. Haas.

CONSTIPATED! Gas Crowds Heart.

"For years I had occasional constipation, headaches and pains in the back. Awful gas bloating seemed to crowd my heart. Adlerika always helped right away. Now I eat sausage, bananas, pie, anything I want and never felt better."—Mrs. Mabel Schott. Two things happen when you are constipated. FIRST: Accumulated wastes swell up bowels and press on nerves in the digestive tract. SECOND: Partly digested food starts to decay forming GAS, often bringing on sour stomach, indigestion, and heartburn, bloating you up until you sometimes gasp for breath. Adlerika gives double relief with DOUBLE ACTION. BALANCED Adlerika containing three laxatives and five carminatives relieves STOMACH GAS almost at once. It often clears bowels in less than two hours. No griping, no after effects, just quick results.

Blazing Tanks Of French Push Germans Back

Point-Blank Fire.

French 75 millimeter guns, used successfully against Germany's armored "Panzer" divisions Saturday, were placed along the Oise banks today near the village of Ribemont when the Germans resumed their push at the exact center of the pocket facing Saint Quentin.

In the first thrust, it was claimed, German tanks were smashed by point-blank artillery fire and through a gaping hole in the Nazi line the French poured their own tanks which were said to have isolated and destroyed two columns of German motorized infantry moving up in automobile trucks.

The German infantry, according to this French version, was decimated by the French tanks and the loss of the columns forced the Germans to abandon Le Cateau and retreat back through Landrecies.

French Tanks "Best."

The French used both big and little tanks in the counter drive, the big 70-ton "rolling fortresses" and smaller 15-ton and 20-ton tanks with machine guns and pompom anti-tank weapons.

The French said the superiority of their tanks had been shown because the French ones have much thicker armor plate and can crowd in closer and cause far more destruction.

Allied air forces flew and fought continuously during the 17 hours of daylight and did enormous damage to the German rear.

The pontoon bridges across the Meuse—the Germans' vital communications link—were attacked by Allied dive bombers and at least 11 such pontoon bridges were blown up.

F. D. R. May Put Republicans In Cabinet Posts

N. Y. Times Says Knox, Landon Are Being Considered.

NEW YORK, May 19.—(AP)—The New York Times says that President Roosevelt is "seriously considering the appointment of several prominent Republicans to secretaryships in a coalition cabinet."

The Times says there is a "strong possibility" that the President, "faced with widespread national concern over the developments of the European war," in the immediate future would name Colonel Frank Knox, Chicago publisher, secretary of the navy.

Colonel Knox was Republican vice presidential nominee in 1936. The present secretary of the navy, Charles Edison, is the state Democratic organization's candidate for governor in New Jersey and is expected to resign shortly, the paper adds.

The Times says it was understood that President Roosevelt in a private conference at the White House with Colonel Knox last Wednesday told him the nation was confronted with a military emergency.

Nazis Withdraw From Swiss Border

BASEL, Switzerland, May 19.—(AP)—German forces concentrated in Swiss frontier regions moved their armored cars and light tanks away from the immediate border sector today, but where they went was a German secret.

Some observers expressed belief they had sped northward toward the battlefields of Belgium and France. Others, however, speculated that it was a ruse to lead the French into sending their mountain forces into the northwestern battle, and that the Germans actually had withdrawn only a few miles.

The French countered by removing similar equipment from immediate border regions, but there, too, it could not be learned whether they went where they were needed most, or merely remained on guard out of sight.

Law Alumni Name Bolton New Head

Hubert Bolton yesterday was named president of the Alumni Association of Woodrow Wilson College of Law to succeed George Wing.

Representatives of the various classes were chosen as follows: G. D. Etchison, Eugene C. McLaughlin, S. P. Fleming, C. R. Harvey, Charlie W. Hall, Paul W. Hughes, Bette Seibert, Ed Mackey, Fred Kerr, Horace McConnell, H. B. Miles and John Ford.

Nazi Broadcast Station Is Seized in Argentine

BUENOS AIRES, May 19.—(AP)—A Nazi-controlled secret radio station was seized by postal and police officials in a raid at the interior city of Campana yesterday. The station, unlicensed, had been used to broadcast propaganda, officials said.

Bishop Cannon Urges U. S. To Declare War

Says Some Things Are More Precious Than Peace.

RICHMOND, Va., May 19.—(AP)—Bishop James Cannon Jr., of the Methodist church, made public here today an open letter to Secretary of State Hull urging that he use his "great influence with the President and congress to declare war against Hitler and his fellow monsters."

Declaring that some things were more precious than peace and that there could be no "permanent peace unless and until justice and righteousness prevail," Bishop Cannon asserted defense of the oppressed and of human rights was sometimes both necessary and Christian.

"If the United States would today repeal the cowardly neutrality act and would today declare war against Germany because of the restriction of our rights by her barbarous submarine warfare, there would instantly be a great change in the attitude of the nations of the world," he said. "Instead of fear there would be hope, and I believe that there would be no menace that the sword-rattling Mussolini would enter the war."

Memorial Service Held for Firemen

Fifth annual memorial services, honoring members of the Atlanta fire department who died during the year, were held yesterday afternoon at the Druid Hills Baptist church.

The nine deceased members in whose honor yesterday's exercises were held are T. M. Freeman, A. Butler, C. R. Jones, retired; L. R. Wallace, H. G. Wright, R. E. Ozmer, retired; C. W. Long, H. S. Joyner, retired, and C. F. Mitchell.

The services were staged under the auspices of the International Association of Firefighters, Local No. 134, and the Ladies' Auxiliary.

IT ALL CAME TRUE

All the Boarders Are Excited the Night Mr. Grasselli Comes Down to Dinner

By Louis Bromfield.

SYNOPSIS.

Miss Minnie left her brownstone house to her servants( Mrs. Lefferty and Maggie Ryan, who lives with four old boarders. Maggie's torch-singing daughter, Sal, storms back to stay. Mrs. Lefferty's son, Tommy, who has been away for five years, comes back at night with the sinister Grasselli, who is making a hideaway of the house. Sal feels the man is a crook—and asks Tommy, who denies it. But it has become an obsession with Sal to ferret out the mystery of Grasselli. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

INSTALLMENT VIII.

"He didn't know it then," said Sarah Jane. "Did he tell you after?"

"No. I heard your voice. I'd know that voice any place. Well, what are you gonna do about it?"

"I'm not gonna do anything. If you're gonna give yourself up without any trouble, you might as well stay on till the time comes. Ma and Mrs. Lefferty need the money pretty bad."

"I've never seen your mother yet, but I like Tommy's mother. She keeps makin' me think of my old woman, lookin' after me as if I was her own."

"You must get awful sick of that one room."

"I'm beginnin' to feel a little nuts from bein' shut up so much."

"Why don't you come down for meals? That would be a change."

"I'm not so hot about bein' seen."

Sarah Jane laughed. "None of them would ever know. You oughta see the rest of 'em. Why, they ain't even alive. They're a lot of fossils." And she proceeded to give him a brief description of old Mr. Van Diver and Miss Flint, Mr. Boldini and Mr. Salmon. "You're safe as a church with them around. Sure, they'd make you laugh."

"Well, mebbe I'll think about it. It's kinda like beginnin' a sentence already, bein' shut up all the time in that room."

Sarah Jane opened the door and went out. "Have a good bath," she said, over her shoulder, "and don't worry about me. Silent as the grave."

"Oke," said Mr. Grasselli.

"And don't forget Tommy," said Sarah Jane. "He needs a break pretty bad. If he don't get one, he's gonna go to pieces."

"I won't forget him," Mr. Grasselli called from behind the closed door.

And then the worst happened. As she passed Tommy's door, it opened, and Tommy's head was thrust out. His hair was tousled and his face red with anger, and at sight of him Sarah Jane was not so much frightened as smitten with a terrible feeling of love for him, because he looked exactly like Tommy as a little boy.

"Now you've done it," he said. "Spoiled everything with your spying."

"I havent spoiled anything. I've just kind of cleared up the situation. He's staying right here, and he's even coming down to meals. Leave him to me. I know him better than you do."

"He was going to give me a break," said Tommy. "He could have helped both of us."

"He mighta talked about it bebore," said Sarah Jane. "Now he's gonna do it."

"Better not try any monkey business with Monk."

"Listen, Tommy, I know guys like Monk Maguire. I know what kind of a rat he is. Help you when everything's going fine and he can use you, and forget all about you the rest of the time. I know that kind of a rat. You oughta seen him when I came out from behind the curtain—scared stiff! Just leave it to me. Go on back to bed. I've been waiting for years for a break like this."

It was a lot better than she had hoped. After she was in bed she lay awake for a long time thinking how dumb she was not to have guessed that Mr. Grasselli was Monk Maguire. She knew all about Monk, even back in the days of prohibition, when he was a bootlegger and a speakeasy king. She knew about his night clubs and the money he put up to back shows, and about his interest in the "drug" business. And most important of all, she knew that at heart he was a coward.

She knew Monk was quaking as soon as she stepped out from behind the curtain. He didn't deserve any pity or any soft treatment; playing on the level didn't get you anywhere with a mug like him. The sooner she got Tommy out of that jam the better, because he was too innocent to cope with anyone like Monk Maguire.

And she knew now who "Mr. Hirsh" was. He was Mr. Berolzheimer, the smart lawyer that Monk always hired to get himself out of a jam.

The next evening Mr. Grasselli came out of his retirement and appeared at dinner all dressed up in a dinner coat and a black tie. His appearance was the greatest moment in the history of Mrs. Lefferty's boarding house. For two weeks the boarders had been aware of Mr. Grasselli's presence in the same house; for two weeks they had speculated about him, and now, suddenly, he had appeared to become one of them.

Maggie made up a couple of special dishes for the occasion. Mrs. Lefferty put on her best dress, and Miss Flint hastily ran up a concoction made of the bottom of one dress and the top of another. She it was who appeared the most deeply affected by Mr. Grasselli's presence. She giggled and bridled, shaking her oriental earrings.

For two weeks she had invented the wildest fancies about Mr. Grasselli: how after all these years he had come—the man for whom she had been waiting all her life; how one day there would be a knock at her door, and on opening it, she would find Mr. Grasselli standing there to say he was the man. And slowly she had come to believe these things. So when Mr. Grasselli came down the stairs and entered poor Miss Minnie's parlor, she thought, "Here he comes."

He was not exactly what she had thought he would be. He was not handsome, and she had not expected him to be a little cockeyed, but he had other qualities. He was, she thought, exactly like the heroes Ethel M. Dell always wrote about—masterful, cruel, with one eye a different color from the other (only Mr. Grasselli was cockeyed, instead).

Mr. Boldini and Mr. Salmon bristled a little at the appearance of another male boarder. Old Mr. Van Diver chuckled to himself, pleased and faintly aware that there was excitement about.

Oddly enough, the only one at the table who felt uncomfortable was the newcomer. Mr. Grasselli had never encountered the atmosphere of gentility which reigned at Mrs. Lefferty's. Belonging to a New York which none of them knew, a raucous, noisy, scrambling place where he reigned for a time as king, he felt clumsy and brutal in the elegant leisurely New York he encountered in poor Miss Minnie's house.

And afterwards in the "drawing-room" (which was a word Mr. Grasselli had never even heard), while Mrs. Lefferty sat pouring out coffee, his awkwardness increased. He became, also for the first time in his life, conscious of his own language and aware that often he expressed himself in words which the other boarders seemed to find quite as new as he found the name of the room in which they were sitting. And Miss Flint, bedizened and coquettish, fascinated and terrified him because he had never seen anyone like her before.

But on the whole the dinner went off well save for one incident which occurred just as they were finishing something which Mrs. Lefferty called "the sweet." Mr. Grasselli sat between Mrs. Lefferty and Sarah Jane opposite the screen, which hid the dumbwaiter. Suddenly, without warning, from behind the screen came the sound of breaking china and a muttered imprecation. At the same time one blue eye became visible at the joint of the screen, and Mr. Grasselli's hand flew into the pocket of his dinner jacket.

After dinner Mrs. Lefferty and the boarders were aching to return to the non-stop rummy game, but none of them was impolite enough to propose it until Sarah Jane asked Mr. Grasselli if he played rummy. He didn't, he said, but he guessed he could learn.

"They don't play for money," said Sarah Jane.

"Okay," said Mr. Grasselli.

"If you're gonna play cards, I guess I'll take Tommy to the movies."

So Mrs. Lefferty fetched "the old gentleman's" gaming table and they all sat down to play. The game relieved the atmosphere enormously and after a little while Mr. Grasselli, with the worn playing cards in his fat ugly hands, began to feel more at home. He picked up the game quickly and after the second hand no longer needed Miss Flint's solicitous help. And when the second game went to him, Mrs. Lefferty took out the copybook in which she kept the running score and wrote "Mr. Grasselli," and under it the figure one.

"Now," she said to Mr. Grasselli, "you're one of us."

During the third game Sarah and Tommy returned from the movies across the street and sat down to watch. Until that point Mrs. Lefferty had been showing her usual skill and was far ahead, but from the moment Sarah Jane and Tommy returned, she seemed unable to keep her mind on the game.

It was, she knew, the first time that Sarah Jane and Tommy had gone together in more than five years, and the sight of them coming in out of the rain, both looking happy, filled her heart with warmth. She kept thinking how wonderful it would be if they took a fancy to each other and got married and settled down, so that she and Maggie wouldnt have to worry about them all the time. And then suddenly she remembered the interest and the taxes and the insurance. Maybe, she thought, we won't have any home at all this time next year. But the story, she knew, couldn't turn out wrong. Something had to turn up.

Your Own Horoscope for Today

By ALICE DENTON JENNINGS, Noted Atlanta Chirologist

What today means to you if you were born between:

March 21st and April 19th (ARIES)—Before 9:16 a. m. is the better part of the day, and matters in general tend to go along all right. The remainder of the day and evening, do not enter into anything that is confused.

April 20th and May 20th (TAURUS)—Deal with those from whom you desire favors previous to 2:51 p. m. Use care in contact with others after that hour, and go slow in signing your name to important papers.

May 21st and June 20th (GEMINI)—Previous to 10:09 a. m. affairs are apt to be slow and heavy, but the remainder of the day favors progressive works, contacting people who are unusual and optimistic.

June 21st and July 22d (CANCER)—Success may be attained in some unexpected or unusual way during the entire day. This is an auspicious day to deal with unusual people and in unusual subjects.

July 23d and August 22d (LEO)—Mechanical and industrial pursuits are favored today, but do not make radical departures from customary way of doing things.

August 23d and September 22d (VIRGO)—This is an auspicious day for dealings in steel, iron, land, with older people, and for finishing up old works.

September 23d and October 22d (LIBRA)—Previous to 1:41 p. m. favors tedious work and undertaking affairs that you have to dig to attain. After 1:41 p. m. suggests going slow in making promises, correspondence and making changes.

October 23d and November 21st (SCORPIO)—The day favors general activities and for working with people. It should be easy to say and do the right thing.

November 22d and December 21st (SAGITTARIUS)—The day favors an expansion of your activities. The day favors commercial activities, travel, finances, and attending to those things that require diplomacy.

December 22d and January 19th (CAPRICORN)—If you have big plans to put into effect, try them out today. This should be a favorable day for affairs involving responsibility.

January 20th and February 18th (AQUARIUS)—Workers and superiors should give you splendid co-operation if tact and patience are displayed with them. Work on steady affairs is especially favored.

February 19th and March 20th (PISCES)—The day favors finishing old matters, contacting those in positions of authority, correspondence and philanthropic works. Be conservative in pleasures.

THEATER—Claudette Colbert as a beautiful adventuress and Don Ameche as a penniless nobleman, who drives a taxi, will co-star in Cecil B. DeMille's radio adaptation of their latest film, "Midnight," on the "Radio Theater" during its broadcast, to be heard over WGST at 8 o'clock tonight. This is the second appearance this season at the "theater" for both stars.

"Midnight" is a gay story of Eve Peabody, an American dancer, with social-climbing inclinations, who goes to Europe with a show. She is just about to acquire a titled husband when his family dissuades her with a large-sized check. She loses the money at Monte Carlo and is then befriended by a Hungarian taxi driver.

CONCERT—Richard Crooks, Metropolitan Opera tenor, will sing one of the most famous of all tenor arias, "Una Furtiva Lagrima," from Donizetti's "Elisir d'Amore," during the regular broadcast of the Monday concert program to be heard over WSB at 7:30 o'clock tonight.

The orchestra, under the direction of Alfred Wallenstein, will be heard in the overture to Flotow's opera, "Martha."

The program includes:
Overture to "Martha," by Flotow (orchestra).
"I'll Take You Home Again, Kathleen," by Westendorf (Richard Crooks).
"Narcissus," by Nevin (orchestra).
"Serenade," by Toselli.
"Una Furtiva Lagrima," from "Li-Elisir d'Amore, by Donizetti (Richard Crooks).
"Gold and Silver" waltz, by Lehar (orchestra).
"The Lord's Prayer," by Malotte (Richard Crooks).

TUNE-UP TIME—Andre Kostelanetz and his 45-piece orchestra will feature a medley of Victor Herbert tunes on "Tune-Up Time's" first broadcast since its return from a six weeks' sojourn in Hollywood. The program will be heard over WGST at 7 o'clock tonight.

The Herbert medley will include three songs from the operetta, "Naughty Marietta," and one selection from the operetta, "The Red Mill."

The program includes:
"Falling in Love With Someone."
"Neath the Southern Moon."
"Italian Street Song."
"Moonbeams."
"Take Me Out to the Ball Game."
"Yours Is My Heart Alone."
"Woodpecker's Song."
"Too Romantic."
"Danny Boy."

TELEPHONE HOUR—Francia White, lovely young soprano, will sing the "Laughing Song," from Johann Strauss' opera, "Die Fledermaus," as the vocal highlight of the program to be heard over WSB at 7 o'clock tonight.

Assisted by the orchestra, under the direction of Don Voorhees, Miss White and James Melton, tenor, will be heard singing the "Miserere," from Verdi's opera, "Il Trovatore."

Clean Pillows for Health's Sake, Says Gold Shield Official

2 Specialized Gold Shield Departments

Feather Pillow Cleaning and Rug Cleaning Please Customers.

"How many times have YOU had your pillows cleaned in the last 10 years?" is a favorite question with S. R. Greenblatt, president of the Gold Shield group of launderers and cleaners. With a start, many housewives suddenly realize that year after year their pillows have lent their comfort to weary heads every night . . . that they have supported the heads of those who were ill with colds and other diseases . . . and that they have never been cleaned. True, the pillow cases are changed frequently; but even the whitest, cleanest pillow cases doesn't keep perspiration from soaking through. It is no bar to disease germs. It doesn't keep spilled liquids or medicines from soiling the tick. The ticks themselves are not water-proof, dust-proof and germ-proof. The feathers inside become matted and heavy from constant pressure. They may easily be dust-laden and germ-laden.

Gold Shield's new feather-cleaning process is licensed under the rules and regulations of the State Department of Health. It is entirely different from and far more effective than the old methods of washing pillows. The feathers are drawn from the tick by suction into the drum of the feather-cleaning machine, where they are kept in constant motion while being cleaned, sterilized and rid of all foreign particles and dust by a combination of filtered, fresh air and pure, live steam. The feathers are then blown back into the tick which has been laundered and sterilized. Not once have they come into contact with human hands. Neither have they touched the feathers from any other pillow. Each individual feather comes from this process clean, curly, soft, and germ-free. The whole pillow is so revitalized that it helps promote restful, healthful sleep.

"And while we are talking about what Gold Shield does for what goes under your head, let's don't neglect to mention what we can do for what goes under your feet."

Gold Shield's reputation for careful cleaning of all types of rugs, ranging from the most expensive imports to the most moderately priced domestics, has spread far beyond the confines of Atlanta and its suburbs; and rugs are shipped to Gold Shield from all over the state of Georgia for cleaning or redyeing. The cleaning process is gentle, yet so thorough that it not only removes all grit, but also all soil which has permeated the very fibers of the rug and which cannot be removed by any amount of vacuum cleaning. Gold Shield cleaning lengthens the life of rugs, for there is no grit left to cut the yarns and no soil to rot the fibers.

Comprising the Gold Shield group of launderers and cleaners are American, Capital City, Excelsior, Guthman, May's, Piedmont, Trio, Troy; and Decatur Laundry in Dectaur, Ga. A telephone call to any one of them brings a courteous, uniformed representative promptly to the door of any home.

$400 Cleared In Few Weeks From Chicks

Canton Chicken Raiser Tells of Success With Blue Ribbon Stock.

Let us quote you a few figures, Mr. Reader, showing the remarkable success recently achieved by H. J. Cline, of Canton, Ga., in the raising and marketing of fryers for the Atlanta market, and perhaps other markets which secured some of his chicks.

The chicks were the well-known Blue Ribbon Hatchery chicks, purchased from this popular hatchery, owned and managed by J. I. Hosford, at 215 Forsyth street, S. W.

Mr. Cline has been engaged in the business of raising chickens for many years. He is well and popularly known throughout his north Georgia section. He visited the hatchery on Forsyth street a few days ago, and the story of his success and the profits he had made in so short a time was quite interesting, and shows what can be done with careful handling and raising of chicks—or fryers—for the market. Here are the figures:

On February 8, this year, Mr. Cline purchased 600 chicks from the hatchery. In eight weeks they were sold on the market, averaging two pounds each.

A week later, February 15, he bought from the Blue Ribbon 1,200 chicks. These were sold in nine weeks on the market, with an average of 2 1-2 pounds.

One week later he purchased 1,200 more chicks, and in eight weeks to the day they were marketed, with an average of a little better than two pounds each.

Thus you will see he had purchased and sold in about three months 3,000 chicks, and his figures show that he had lost only 6 per cent in the raising, selling 94 per cent of his stock. With all expenses, first for the baby chicks, their feed, etc., taken out, he had a clear profit of $400. What more convincing evidence is needed of the profit in raising chickens!

On April 29, Mr. Cline again visited the hatchery and purchased 750 chicks, and so far, he states, has lost only 12 little fellows. His visit a few days ago was to arrange for a large additional stock. He is enlarging his brooder house and other equipment so that he can take care of 7,000 chicks at one time, and expects to keep up the work of producing marketable chicks the year round. The Blue Ribbon Hatchery lends its co-operation to their customers in disposing of fryers. They find the market, secure the prices offered, and keep in touch with raisers so that they can market their chicks to the best advantage.

MODERN SERVICE STATION of Ralph Cannon, at 212 Spring Street, corner Ellis Street, where more than 5,000 repair jobs have been brought in during the year he has been located there. His plant is modernly equipped, with trained mechanics, being an Authorized Station for United Motors Service.

Ralph Cannon Has Completed 5,000 Repairs

Been Located at 212 Spring Street One Year; Has Served Many.

Emblazoned in large letters just inside the up-to-date service station of Ralph Cannon, at 212 Spring street, N. W., corner of Ellis, one reads the above sign as he drives in the big front door of Cannon's place. That is a most friendly greeting to Ralph's hundreds of customers, and whether they are all the "best peoeple" or not—and none dispute it—they are driving in as motorists looking for the "best work" it is possible to get. And naturally, that's the place they go.

Ralph Cannon has been located at this Spring street address for a year, and with his large working rooms for his expert mechanics, with his modern equipment, and with his courteous personnel and reasonable rates for his work, has built up a large and constantly growing business. No less than 5,000 separate jobs have been brought into his station in that time. For many years Mr. Cannon has been recognized as one of the leading and most widely experienced auto mechanics in the south. He gives his personal attention, just as far as possible, to every repair job of any kind entrusted to the care of his station.

Recently he has added and is an authorized station for United Motors Service—a type of service recognized by all motorists as among the very best obtainable. Repairs of any kind on any type of car or truck is an easy matter for his force of skilled mechanics. Here are some of the things needful as repair work on cars from time to time—such things as generators, regulators, distributors, starting motors, radiators, fuel pumps, speedometers, shock absorbers, auto radios, car heaters, carburetors, electric motors.

Motorists will do well to keep Ralph Cannon's service station in mind. Summer driving days—vacation trips—journeys afar—these are the type of trips that require auto drivers to look carefully into the condition of their cars before starting. Let Cannon's station go over your car—see about its needs—and make the car as safe as humanly possible before you drive away.

World-Known Are Venetian

Western Venetian Blind Company Shows Big Increase in Volume.

Showing a healthy increase of 54 per cent over its business last year, the Western Venetian Blind Company, located at 346 Jones avenue, at Marietta street, is meeting the demands for its products with a vim these days.

This company has recently installed the Hunter Engineering Company's equipment for making steel blinds. This equipment—known as the most efficient of its kind—enables the concern to manufacture the steel type of blinds, which is just now among the most popular for practically all purposes.

For more than 31 years Western Venetian blinds have been used in fine offices and homes all over the world, and since opening the plant in Atlanta hundreds of installations have been made throughout this city and section. The Western Venetian Blind Company of Georgia is locally owned and operated under a franchise agreement with the parent company.

Western Venetian blinds may be obtained in Atlanta proper direct from the Western Venetian Blind Company, on Jones avenue. Telephone Walnut 4353, and a telephone call is all that is necessary to have someone call at your home or office with complete samples, colors and information concerning prices and details.

There is no obligation attached to this service, and all such calls are welcome. In addition, Western Venetian blinds may be obtained from some large department stores and awning companies of the city. A complete line of high grade custom bilt blinds as well as the less expensive ready-made blinds are made in the Atlanta plant.

Crisis Facing U.S., Ramspeck Tells Officers

No Time To Quibble Over Expenses, Solon Says at Meeting.

Face to face with a great crisis, America's first job is preparedness and we should not quibble over expenses, Congressman Robert Ramspeck told more than 350 reserve officers at Fort McPherson yesterday, as the organization closed its annual two-day meeting.

"We are a peace-loving people, but we have come face to face with the greatest crisis in the world," he said. "And we are not prepared to meet the situation."

Against Sending Men.

He emphasized he was prepared to support President Roosevelt's recommendation for a huge defense fund, and added, "I favor making our nation ready for any situation, and we should not quibble about expenses."

While admitting there was a possibility Germany would win the war within the next 30 days, the congressman said he would not vote to send our men over to help the Allies. He poined out he was willing to assist in supplies, but not men, because the Allies let Germany rearm after the first World War and they probably would do the same thing again if victorious.

He said the President's defense program is not a political issue but one affecting our liberty and homes.

Captain Anthony Tarantino, of Columbus, vice president, state at large; First Lieutenant K. L. Hamilton, of Rome, vice president, northern district; Captain Harry Ennick, of Macon, vice president, middle district; Captain S. C. Subers, of Brunswick, southern district; Lieutenant Colonel E. W. Smith, of Atlanta, judge advocate; Captain S. A. Cartledge, of Atlanta, chaplain; Captain Willard Gholson, of Americus, surgeon, and Captain A. M. Gignilliatt, of Savannah, historian.

The Atlanta chapter, headed by Captain W. G. Grant, won two association awards for the best publicity program and for the best national defense week program.

The association also adopted a resolution urging private business and political subdivision to grant military leaves wthout loss of pay.

The 1941 convention will be held in Columbus at Fort Benning.

Allied Plane Order Totals $50,000,000

SANTA MONICA, Cal., May 19. (AP)—The Anglo-French purchasing commission has placed orders for $50,000,000 worth of Douglas attack bombers.

This announcement was made today by Donald W. Douglas, president of the Douglas Aircraft Company, who said half the planes would be made by the Boeing Aircraft Company, of Seattle, Wash., under Douglas license. "Production of a large number of identical airplanes in widely separated localities will go a long way toward initiating President Roosevelt's new national defense program," Douglas said.

Have More Babies, Nazi Urges Women

BERLIN, May 19.—(AP)—Minister of the Interior William Frick, in a Mother's Day radio address today, urged German women to have more babies.

"We have allotted the German people gigantic tasks in the middle European area," he said.

"Possibilities have been reopened which cannot be exhausted in centuries. We will be able to exploit these possibilities only if we have enough persons capable of doing so.

"To assist young couples, 1,445,843 marriage loans, worth 1,300,000,000 marks (nominally about $520,000,000) have been granted by the state."

Hospital Trains Leave England

War Romance Prize Winners To Be Guests

Letters Describing Memoirs of Atlanta Couples To Be Judged.

"Waterloo Bridge," a poignant story of war, is opening at Loew's Grand theater Friday. The 15 word letter to The Constitution couples who submit the best 200-"Waterloo Bridge" Contest Editor before 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon will be guests of The Constitution and the Grand Theater at a dinner and theater party Friday night.

The letter may be written by either husband or wife, or both, and must relate the story of their World War romance. The most unusual stories and the stories written in the most interesting manner will be selected by a board of judges.

In "Waterloo Bridge" Robert Taylor as "Colonel Roy Cronin," and Vivien Leigh as "Myra" meet in an air raid shelter. Tell in the letter the events surrounding your meeting. Perhaps Atlanta's own Camp Gordon was the scene of your romance.

Don't forget, the letters will be accepted no later than 2 o'clock Wednesday. Address them to The Constitution "Waterloo Bridge" Contest Editor. Write only on one side of the paper, and if typewritten, use double space.

3 Dogs Help Cripple Escape Nazi Invaders

Faithful Canines Pull Wheel Chair 200 Miles to Paris.

PARIS, May 19.—(UP)—Among thousands of refugees arriving in Paris today was a crippled woman who came 200 miles in a wheel chair drawn by her three dogs, two Pomeranians and a mongrel. She was a week en route from Aise department and when she reached here her dogs fell fainting from hunger, thirst and fatigue.

"My dogs have a habit of pulling me around, but this was the first time we ever tried such a distance," she said. "I knew if we stayed we couldn't escape the Germans, so I hitched up Fanny, Etna and Tannite."

The dogs fell exhausted, too tired to eat or drink immediately. The women was put to bed to recuperate, as she declared her intention of continuing to Rochefort.

This was her second invasion and second flight from German armies. A German air raid in 1915 crippled her for life.

Milk Dumped, Drivers Beaten In Strike Fights

Deliveries in Chicago Are Halted; Dairies Ask Police Protection.

CHICAGO, May 19.—(AP)—Milk was dumped and there were scattered reports of beatings and other violence today as Chicago milk deliveries were halted for the second time in a wage dispute between dealers and drivers.

At least three men making milk deliveries were beaten and several others reported to police their trucks were curbed.

About 40 dairies and milk stations asked police to stand guard. State and county highway police were instructed to be on the alert today for any trouble which might result from delivery of milk into the city from the "milk shed" area of Illinois, Wisconsin and Indiana.

President Henry Weber, of the Milk Wagon Drivers' Union, called the dispute a "lockout." He declared that 70 independents, mostly small dairies which employ about 25 per cent of the 4,600 drivers, had signed to pay the old wage scale.

Paul Potter, secretary of the Dealers' Association, denied there was a "lockout."

Consideration Must Be Given to Protection, George Cautions.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS,
Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—Proposals originating in the state that Georgia be selected as the site of part of the expansion in the airplane construction program, in line with President Roosevelt's enlarged defense scheme, today met with enthusiasm mingled with some doubt among members of the Georgia delegation here.

Senator George expressed the view that although every consideration should be given to the feasibility of locating aircraft plants in Georgia, consideration must be given also to the factor of protection. He cited President Roosevelt's statement in which the chief executive suggested that expansion in the industry should probably be confined to that area of the nation east of the Rockies and west of the Allegheny mountains to assure the best possible protection from attack.

Relies on Military.

"While I would like to see aircraft plants established and operated in Georgia, I feel that we must take into consideration their protection and for this decision I am content to rely upon the army and navy departments," Senator George stated. "Furthermore, we must take into consideration the availability to the source of raw material supplies."

Agreeing with the President that plants must be protected from coastal attacks, the senator added that he believes that the plants and their products should be so located that they are in "reasonable proximity to both coasts."

"This is a matter about which we must be scientific, rather than political," Senator George declared. "Georgia has what I believe to be some good, safe sites, but a scientific analysis must be made before any steps are taken."

Turning to the mechanics of producing a fleet of 50,000 planes within a year, as requested by the President, the senator stated that "the very first consideration is to have ready a trained personnel capable of manufacturing and manning such a fleet of planes."

Concurs in Suggestion.

The senator also concurred in President Roosevelt's suggestion that it may be necessary to subsidize manufacturers who will be asked to produce the nation's huge order of planes. Senator George suggested further that he would favor relaxing tax laws to enable manufacturers to write off the cost of expansion for this purpose over a shorter period, say from three to five years.

During the last World War Americus, Ga., was the site of a small aviation training unit, known as Souther field. While it might still be available for training purposes, the feeling in official circles is that the government would not want to sponsor an aircraft manufacturing plant at a point so close to the sea. To a lesser degree, the same objection would apply to proposed sites near Atlanta, which is only some 300 miles from the coast, or only an hour's flight from sea in the latest type of military planes.

ATLANTA STRATEGIC FOR PLANE-BUILDING

Atlanta's strategic position, both from a military and a production standpoint, is certain to give it a role of great importance in America's widely expanded aviation program.

Authorities here yesterday, expressing this view, pointed to the city's inland location, its accessibility to proper woods and aluminum, among other materials, and its high climatic rating for plane testing.

At present about 90 per cent of the nation's plane factories are located near hazardous seaboards, roughly around New York, on the Atlantic, and Los Angeles and Seattle on the Pacific.

Principal sources of aluminum are Alcoa, Tenn., and Mobile, it was shown, thus making it highly desirable that the new production should be distributed carefully with regard to supplies of this necessary metal.

Allowing for increased efficiencies, chiefly through mass production, it was estimated that a 20-fold increase of facilities would be necessary to meet the President's production figure of 50,000 planes.

The importance of Georgia Tech to the south's participation in the program likewise was stressed. Its aeronautical department, of which Professor Montgomery Knight is director, is expected to figure importantly in launching and accomplishing the air defense plan.

British Cruiser Reported Wrecked

BERLIN, May 19.—(AP)—The official German news agency reported today that Nazi air scouters sighted a heavy enemy cruiser stranded off Bodo, northern Norway.

The cruiser was listing heavily and was guarded by enemy planes and one destroyer, DNB said.

The wreckage of a transport of 25,000 tons or more was discovered today off the Netherlands port of Flushing, DNB said.

U. S. To Defend Hawaii From 'Red Invasion'

25,000 Troops, Navy To Join Games; Honolulu To Have Blackout.

HONOLULU, May 19.—(AP)—A make-believe "red" enemy unleashes a lightning invasion of the Hawaiian islands this week, and for three days 25,000 United States troops and a portion of the fleet will concentrate in defense of the island of Oahu.

In the greatest experiment of its kind ever held under the American flag, the civilian populace and naval units in the vicinity will join in the first territorial "blackout" Thursday night, the beginning of the "red" invasion.

Some time between 8:30 and 9 p. m. "enemy" planes will begin a simultaneous attack on all the major islands of the archipelago. Radios will announce the alarm, street lights will blink, whistles and sirens will blow to warn the civil, military and naval population to extinguish all lights visible from the air.

For nearly a month, department staff officers have been acting out the preliminary phases of the situation, which assumes the "reds" are a well-balanced force, with modern ships, adequate attached aviation, highly-trained personnel, and a merchant marine capable of transporting a great number of men for initial operations.

The pretended enemy will concentrate its onslaught on the main island of Oahu, on which Honolulu is located.

Some 150 warships will be in the vicinity, though the bulk of the U. S. fleet, here for two weeks after participating in the 1940 war games off these islands, has taken up anchorage at Lahaina roads, Maui island.

GAS SUPPLY DEMANDS MET IN MANEUVERS

CAMP BEAUREGARD, La., May 19.—(AP)—The United States army, revamping Napoleon's maxim that an army travels on its stomach, has kept its units going successfully on their gas tanks also in the big maneuvers here.

The gasoline supply, a vital element in modern warfare, has met every requirement thus far in the country's greatest war games.

In the first two of the four scheduled exercises, the quartermaster corps has kept all motorized units fully fueled in spite of the heavy demands imposed by large physical area and the fastest movement on record for Uncle Sam's fighting forces.

So heavy is the demand that the federal government will spend $350,000 for gasoline and oil for the 18 days of mock warfare.

And so motorized has the American army become that another $160,000 is allotted for motor vehicle repairs, placing the actual daily outlay on motorized equipment to some $26,000 per day—the same sum as it allowed for food rations for the 65,000 fighting men.

British Troopship Sunk By I. R. A., Radio Says

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, May 19.—(AP)—A secret radio station of the outlawed Irish republican army broadcast the assertion today that a British troopship carrying 2,800 men was sunk on the way to the Skagerrak by explosives placed by the I. R. A.

The broadcast was announced by street posters. It said the ship was on its way from Hull, England, when blown up. The broadcast further declared I. R. A. bombs had damaged a British ammunition factory.

Italy Waits for 'Order of Day,' Ciano Declares

Mussolini Rumored Planning To Address People Tonight.

ROME, May 19.—(AP)—Italy "must say and will say" her word in European events, and only awaits "the order of the day," Count Galeazzo Ciano, foreign minister, told the Italian people today as air raid precautions were ordered for areas in the northern part of the country, facing France.

"Italy cannot remain a stranger to events in European life," Ciano said in a speech at Milan, but the people must wait until Mussolini speaks to know what to do next.

While Ciano was speaking in Milan a rumor circulated in Rome that Premier Mussolini was planning to speak tomorrow night from his balcony at the Palazzo Venezia.

It was in the spirit of her victories, Ciano said, that Italy was hastening "these new tasks for which it will be called."

Italy, he said, in what appeared to be a reference to the alliance with Germany, "intends to keep faith in her engagements and likewise her greater destiny."

Ciano said he knew the people would not expect him to say more because "the order of the day will come to us all from Il Duce when he will have decided upon it."

"And when he gives it," Ciano continued, "Milan will leap once again to its feet."

The foreign minister spoke at a time when Fascists hinted Italy was being drawn to the brink of war by German successes on the western front.

WEST END MEETING.

The West End Business Men's Association will meet at 7:30 o'clock tonight at 867 Gordon street, S. W. Plans for the annual barbecue will be discussed.

Eight Killed In California Valley 'Quake

100 Hurt, $2,500,000 Damage in El Centro and Towns Nearby.

EL CENTRO, Cal., May 19.—(AP) Eight persons were killed, more than 100 injured, and property damage estimated by El Centro police at $2,500,000 or more caused by a violently sharp earthquake that shook the entire Imperial valley of California last night.

Buildings were demolished, streets and highways ripped open, water systems destroyed, and a portion of one block of business establishments in the border town of Mexicali damaged by a fire that followed the temblor.

Six cities in the righ agricultural area bore the brunt of damage of the first heavy earth shock that crumpled walls of scores of buildings. There were scores of after-shocks, continuing hours later than the first at 8:36 p. m. (11:36 p. m., Atlanta time). Brawley, Imperial, El Centro, Holtville, Calexico and Mexicali all suffered severe damage.

Holtville and Imperial today were without water supply.

The main highway north to Los Angeles was impassable, fissures being opened in several areas by the force of the earthquake, which rumbled in northeast-to-southwest direction, with a twisting motion.

Fully one-third of Imperial's buildings were damaged by the shock, and virtually all structures on the main street were flattened. Posts supporting arcades running over the sidewalks were, in some cases, moved a foot by the twisting quake.

Nation's Banks Swell Assets to 77 Billion

WASHINGTON, May 19.—(AP)—The comptroller of the currency reported today that the nation's banks had swelled their assets to $77,575,257,000 on December 30, an increase of $3,973,937,000 in six months.

Total deposits in 15,096 national, state and private banks covered in the preliminary figures for the December 30 call were $68,566,043,000, which was an increase of $3,989,349,000 since June 30, 1939.

Mrs. Gladys Scruggs Says There Are No 'Non-Combatants.'

Women should be prepared to take an active personal part in the war, it was declared yesterday by Mrs. Gladys Scruggs, of Atlanta, executive of the Order of Eastern Star, in sending to the Red Cross her application for overseas service as an ambulance driver.

"War now is conducted between total populations, rather than between armies," she pointed out. "There no longer is such a thing as a non-combatant. All people, women, children, old, young, are involved.

"It is because of this that I feel I should try to do what I can and that the same duty devolves upon women who are not engaged in other essential work or do not have conflicting ties."

Mrs. Scruggs is an exceptionally capable automobile operator. Among her achievements was a 3,500-mile tour of Mexico and an unbroken trip from Richmond to Atlanta, 618 miles.

A widow, 44 years old, she said she was prepared to accept any wartime hardships in the field.

Parley To Be Held By County Agents

County agents from northwest Georgia counties will gather at the Fulton County 4-H Club camp in Atlanta Tuesday for a session dealing with agricultural agent problems.

The session, which will begin at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning, will be devoted to agricultural extension problems, with Extension Director Walter S. Brown leading the discusssion.

Problems of the county agents will feature the afternoon program, with E. P. McGee, DeKalb county agent, scheduled to lead the discussion. Luke S. Watson, district agent for northwest Georgia, will preside.

Motorcycle Officer Hurt When Machine Hits Dog

C. M. Cook, 29, motorcycle traffic patrolman, suffered minor injuries yesterday afternoon when his cycle struck a dog and overturned on Ponce de Leon avenue, in the 1200 block, police reported.

Cook was treated at Grady hospital for cuts and abrasions. The dog was uninjured.

Basement Fire Brings Downtown Apparatus

Police said the fire apparently had started from a cigarette dropped through a sidewalk grill on to a pile of trash below.

Liberal Trade Policy Is Aim, Says Roosevelt

U. S. Can Aid World After War, President Says in Message.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—(UP) President Roosevelt tonight said that the promotion of liberal economic policies has been—and will continue to be—a vital part and a dominant purpose of the foreign policy of the United States.

"In this way, and in this way alone, can the United States contribute to the economic reconstruction of the world when the destruction now going on has ceased," he said.

His views were contained in a message read over a National Broadcasting Company network by Under Secretary of State Buckenridge in connection with a celebration of Foreign Trade Week.

Secretary of State Hull was to have read the speech and spoken himself but at the last minute canceled his appearance to receive "an important" telephone call from Paris.

"Today we are all profoundly conscious of the black cloud of war overhanging so much of the world's surface," Mr. Roosevelt's message said. "The devastating and widespread wars now being waged have far-reaching economic and spiritual effects. Some of these effects fall heavily upon our own country.

"The tragic events now transpiring bear eloquent testimony to the fundamental need for liberal economic policies in international affairs, if, in the future, frictions, conflicts and war among nations are to be averted. They serve also to emphasize the inescapable fact that our nation cannot enjoy sustained and satisfactory prosperity unless adequate foreign markets exist for our exportable surpluses and unless our necessary imports are unhampered by adverse developments at home and abroad."

Thunderstorms, Cooler City's Forecast Today

Slightly cooler weather, accompanied by cloudy skies and occasional summer thunderstorms, is predicted for the city today, the weather bureau announced last night.

The high temperature during the day is expected to be around 82 degrees, with the mercury expected to drop to a low of 58 during the early hours of this morning. The high yesterday was 93 and the low 60.

Stenographers, Typists Sought for U. S. Posts

Competitive examinations soon are to be held in Atlanta to fill two stenographic and two typist vacancies now existing in the federal classified service, the Civil Service Commission announced yesterday. The positions are open to men only.

The jobs pay a salary ranging from $1,260 annually for junior typist to $1,620 for senior stenographer. Applications must be filed with the civil service office here by June 18.

'Son-O-Vox' Is Recording Machine

By Sheilah Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, May 19.—The most revolutionary screen invention since the "talkies" is Lester Cowan's "son-o-vox," the invention of Gilbert Wright, son of Harold Bell Wright. Not being very good at describing technical machinery, I can tell you only what the invention does, not what it is—except that it is a sort of recording machine with a couple of valves. The latter pressed to the human throat brings anything from the mooing of a cow to a voice of Caruso, according to the fog horn, a guitar, an organ or the record used. And by mouthing words, the human voice appears to be speaking or singing in the tones of the cow or a fog horn or Caruso. The first studio to use the invention is Paramount—for "Rhythm on the River," starring Bing Crosby. Disney has bought the "son-o-vox" rights for cartoons. And Korda will use it in "Jungle Boy" and "Thief of Bagdad."

---

Attention Canada, Austria, New Zealand and South Africa! Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer is about to unfreeze the revenue withheld from the studio in each of these countries (due to the war). Pictures will be made in each of the above countries to use up the large sums of money now owing to the studio. A similar situation of frozen revenue exists in England and France, but so far Robert Montgomery is the only important Hollywood actor to risk the danger of air raids and other war-time inconvenience of London. The other countries, being farther away from the active scenes of war, seem more attractive to the stars here—Canada in particular, because of its nearness. Clark Gable probably will be the first Hollywoodite to make a picture for Metro in Canada. He is already interested in a story concerning the shipping of planes to Europe from a Canadian port.

John Garfield will soon appear in a little number now being prepared for him at Warner's titled "The Stuff of Heroes." In it John plays a clerk in the advertising department of a newspaper . . . Frances Farmer is currently being tested for his leading lady. John is on his way back to Hollywood, but far from being disappointed at the brevity of his stage appearance in "Heavenly Express," states he will return to the footlights at the first opportunity given him by his contract.

---

Rosalind Russell wants to terminate her contract at Metro. "I haven't made a picture at that studio for more than a year," she tells me. Rosalind's last Metro picture was "The Women." She is now a loan-out to Warners. After which she goes to Universal. And after that comes another co-starring picture with Cary Grant. So it will be at least another year before she sees the inside of her home lot—if then.

Henry Stephenson joins Deanna Durbin and Robert Cummings in "Spring Parade." . . . Loretta Young and Melvyn Douglas are co-starred in "He Stayed for Breakfast." . . . It's not enough for Anna Neagle to star in a picture; she also helps to sell it, and will make a dozen personal appearances in as many cities in conjunction with her "Irene."

Tolerance Is Trait Valued Most Highly in a Woman

By Caroline Chatfield.

It's a well-known fact that if you ask any group of men what trait they value most highly in a woman the great majority of them will answer good nature, amiability, tolerance. These are practically the same thing in a man's mind and whichever word he uses to convey the thought he means that he likes for the woman in his life to approve what he does or keep her mouth shut and pretend to approve, even if she doesn't.

He wants to bask in the approval of the woman who took him for better or worse and wants to be told it's for better. He wants to feel the kiss of healing on his hurts which his mother gave him when he was a little boy. He wants to look into admiring, approving eyes and hear words of sympathy and understanding. He likes to be exonerated of blame in any failure. Don't we all?

This is what a man calls amiability, tolerance, good nature, and it costs a woman something to deliver. You know: she must never nag though he habitually drinks too much and throws away the family money. She must believe him innocent even though she has the letter out of his pocket showing he's guilty. She must grasp the mystery of his dual nature (which no woman can ever grasp) excuse him when the lower one is on top and applaud him when his better nature is up. She must pat him on the back, tell him how smart he is when he's put over a good deal and console him when he loses his shirt, assuring him that it's not his fault.

All things considered, it isn't strange that men rate tolerance so high in the scale of feminine virtues. Any wife that has the goods and delivers is level-headed, broad-minded, self-possessed and far seeing. She can take it and she can refrain from giving it. Her amiability is papa's passport, all vised, to do as he likes, go where he pleases, no questions asked and no exceptions taken.

Yes, the men like amiable, tolerant wives. So do we all like those who give us blanket approval, condone our faults, excuse our failures, and tell us we are one hundred per cent right when we know we are ninety-eight per cent wrong. But most of us have to muddle through without this blessed boon. Which is why the husband of a tolerant wife is the luckiest creature alive. CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Be Slim Again by Taking Calories Out of Storage

By Ida Jean Kain.

All excess pounds represent stored calories. One ounce of body fat is the equivalent of 275 calories of food, taken over and above your requirements. The only way you can lose the excess is to cut your calorie intake down until it is slightly below your requirements.

There is no longer any trial and error connected with a good diet. It's simply a matter of calorie subtraction. If you cut your food intake by 500 calories per day—that is, below your maintenance requirements—you will lose three-fourths pound per week. With very little planning, the 500 calories can easily be omitted. You can do it by leaving off one slice of bread and one small pat of butter at each meal. Or you can get the same result by deleting the breakfast jam and the dinner dessert. Fats are high calorie counters and another easy way to cut calories is to avoid excess fats in any form.

To lose more rapidly, you can decrease your maintenance allowance by 1,000 calories per day. If your usual calorie allowance is 2,200 per day and you drop down to 1,100, you will lose around one and three-quarters pounds a week.

You can plan your menus to suit yourself, but you must follow the basic principles of nutrition. When you subtract calories from your diet, make sure that you do not lessen the quality or quantity of the protein, minerals and vitamins. You must not overlook the fact that the protective elements are not stored with body fat and that they must be supplied every day if you are to keep your health.

You will get along all right if you have daily: A liberal serving of lean meat, one or two eggs, two glasses of skim milk or buttermilk or a serving of cheese in place of one of the glasses of milk, fresh fruits and vegetables, whole wheat bread, and a small amount of butter.

Balanced Slimming Menu.

| | Calories |
|---|---|
| Breakfast— | |
| Orange juice, 1-2 glass | 55 |
| Toast, 2 thin slices | 100 |
| Butter, 1 pat, 1-4-in. thick | 50 |
| Coffee, clear | |
| | 205 |
| Luncheon— | |
| Scrambled egg sandwich (hot) | 250 |
| Skim milk, 1 glass | 80 |
| | 355 |
| Dinner— | |
| Cube steak, broiled | 200 |
| Asparagus tips, 5 | 25 |
| Carrots, 3-4 cup | 45 |
| Butter, 1 level tsp. | 33 |
| Fresh pear | 50 |
| Cheese, 1-oz. portion. | 100 |
| Crackers, 2 | 40 |
| | 493 |
| Total for day | 1,153 |

By following those few rules, you can make out your own reducing diet. You can't really call it dieting . . . It's a plan by which you eat what you need for health and leave off the foods you do not need.

If you have only 10 pounds or so to lose and are in a hurry to get it over with, you might prefer to send for the "Twenty-one Day Diet." These menus have been restricted to 1,000 calories daily and on them you can lose the 10 pounds in three weeks. To assure an optimum of vitamins on these limited menus, take on vitaman A, B, C, D capsule daily.

When sending for the "Twenty-one Day Diet," enclose a stamped return envelope, to Miss Kain, in care of The Atlanta Constitution.

Pleating Accents

By Barbara Bell.

We defy anybody who takes misses' sizes not to look especially pretty and appealing and feminine in this decidely new version of the perennially popular princess. ## Jibe Cologne And Sachet For Summer

By Lillian Mae.

Sachet powder is so old that now it's new again. And how I do love it! It was grandmother's delight, now it's mine.

Powder sachet serves a double purpose. Sprinkled between linens or sewed into dainty little bags and placed amongst lingerie, or in larger bags, fastened to dress hangers, it just simply "does something" with the illusive scent which cannot discolor fabrics, but lingers and lingers. This is the most subtle way of using a fragrance.

But, rubbed under arms, into your palms and in the hollow of your neck, you will achieve a more delicate and lasting body perfume than you can in any other way. And there's just something different and interesting about the haunting fragrance the body gives off when powder sachet is so used.

All this has been brought to my attention because of a very lovely package I found in the shops recently. It's an eau de cologne, made by a house whose perfumes are unbeatable for delightful fragrance and "lastability." Devoid of the lemon-y odor so often first detected in colognes, this one has the exact fragrance of the more costly perfumes. In its handsome faceted bottle it's a lovely package, but cuter still is the little gray silk envelope attached by a dainty ribbon, to each bottle. This little envelope contains sachet powder of a matching fragrance to that in the bottle. I first used mine in my handkerchief box, then transferred it to my clothes closet, dropping the long ribbon loop over a hanger, where it diffused its fragrance daintily through the garments hung thereon.

Both the cologne and the sachet envelope may be purchased for the regular price of the cologne alone. But it's my guess that—even as I—you will love the little envelope so much that you ill lose no time in purchasing one of the dainty frosted bottles of sachet with its lavender and green label and gay little yellow ribbon giving the bottle much the appearance of a little boy strutting forth his first bow-tie. It may be had in the three lovely odors of the perfume itself.

Phone me for the name of this cologne and powder sachet and see for yourself just what a lovely combination it is for the wilting days we are now entering. Write me if you do not live in Atlanta, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

MY DAY: Health Program Part Of National Defense

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

WASHINGTON.—I went to congress to listen to the President deliver his speech on the necessity for the appropriation for national defense and a great armament program. Needless to say, I recognize and accept this necessity, but I agree with Dr. Thomas Parran, surgeon general of the United States, who, in speaking before the American Scientific Congress, said we must consider the health program as part of our national defense because, without it, we can not have a people with "toughness of moral and physical fiber."

We must not use this program for national defense as an excuse to enable us to ignore the equally vital national defense of having people devoted to democracy and feeling that democracy meets their need. The one-third of the nation, ill-fed, ill-housed and ill-clothed, is the most fertile ground for the seeds of dissension strewn so ably today by some of the world's enemies.

From congress I went directly to a luncheon meeting of the various people in outside agencies and in the different departments of the government, interested in matters pertaining to youth. This group has grown greatly since I first met with them and they are doing a valuable work integrating the interests of young people with the interests of the nation.

Someone asked me how it was possible to appropriate all this money for national defense when congress had been so reluctant to appropriate money for a greater housing program, or for more old-age pensions, or for relief of various kinds. The answer is obvious, that people will tax themselves for something which is dramatic enough really to frighten them. We have never been able to make enough people realize that it is equally important to build up a nation of healthy, strong, well-fed people who are decently sheltered, clothed and educated. Those who can not have the decencies of life may be as serious a menace as a foreign invasion. Perhaps this is going to come home to us now and we are going to realize that our national defense program must develop along both these points.

A book has just come to my desk called "Your Career in Business," by Walter Hoving. I hope that many young people will read it. It does not, of course, answer all the problems of youth. It does not answer the great problem of getting jobs when jobs do not exist, but it does help in the approach to an existing job and in the preparation needed for personal success.

I received the ladies of the American Law Institute yesterday afternoon, and then had a group of visitors at 5 o'clock. I ended the day with a meeting in southeast Washington on the District of Columbia relief problem. The sun is shining today after our heavy rain of yesterday and we are hoping to have a lunch in the garden for all of our office force.

X-Ray Shows Deposits Of Calcium in Tissues

By Dr. William Brady.

An attorney 55 years old solemnly states that he has had increasing gout (notwithstanding my belief that no such disease occurs in man, and arthritis in the feet, ankles and hands, at intervals for nearly 20 years, and occasionally a bit of neuritis.

(Come, come, now, your honor, let the witness make up his mind about it and we'll proceed. Or, if he can't decide what ails him, perhaps we can compromise and call it a misery.)

The witness, smiling at the doctor's quibbling: There is also a spot or two of calcium in the tissues in the back. X-ray pictures of joints show deposits of lime and the arteries also show marked calcification. In fact, I have been called a "calcium toter." However, my blood pressure is still normal. Aside from a dead tooth extracted last year, no other point of possible focal infection has been found. Apparently, however, the process of hoarding calcium in joints and tissues still goes on. Otherwise I am in good physical condition.

What I would like to know is why I should be such a miser with calcium. Is it due to some fault in metabolism, and if so, what, and can anything be done about it? (M. C. R.)

In the first place, there is no basis in physiology or pathology for the notion that calcium (lime), whether derived from calcium-rich foods, from hard water or from taking medicinal calcium-compounds, is likely to be deposited in tissues or joints, in arteries or organs. Certainly calcium has nothing to do with the tophi or deposits of mono-sodium urate (uric acid salt) in the tissues which old-time doctors misinterpreted as the cause of what they called gout. Both these mono-sodium-urate deposits, and the areas of calcification or deposits of calcium in the tissues, are a comparatively unimportant consequence or effect of disease, not a cause of disease. In the attorney's case I can give only my earnest opinion that the taking of an abundance of calcium in any of the forms mentioned does not contribute to hardening of the arteries, high blood pressure, joint disease or neuritis.

On the other hand, it is now fairly well established that most children and adolescents get insufficient calcium to build and maintain the best degree of health. This shortage may be due to lack of sufficient variety of the calcium rich foods in the diet—milk, cheese, eggs, peas, beans, raw cabbage, lettuce, other greens, nuts, carrots, but especially enough milk, of which every young person should consume not less than a quart a day, better three pints. Or the shortage may be due to insufficient daily intake of vitamin D, which is necessary for the absorption, utilization, retention and ultimate excretion of calcium.

A Slim-Waisted Afternoon Design

By Lillian Mae.

All the charm, poise and finished beauty of womanhood is expressed by Lillian Mae in Pattern 4467—a dress that will give you dreamed-of slenderness. That wide waistband, pointed in front, seems to whittle down your waist size. And the gently flared skirt has slimming front and back panels. Decorative gathers at either side of the attractive sweetheart neckline may be held by clips or by perky bows drawn through eyelets. More gathers at the short or three-quarter sleeves give a dress-up effect. A whiff of crisp ruffling at neck and sleeves looks most refreshing. Let the Sewing Instructor steer your needle course to a quick finish!

Pattern 4467 is available in women's sizes 34, 36, 28, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36 takes 3 3-8 yards 39-inch fabric and 2 1-8 yards ruffling.

Order the new Lillian Mae Pattern Book by the next mail . . . and be clothes-ready for summer! Within its pages you will find a complete wardrobe for either a traveling or an "at home" summer. ## Sheltering Arms Children To Have Party at Pinebloom

• • • TINY tots whose lives are under the ever-protective care of members of the Sheltering Arms Association are counting the days until May 31, when they will have a party all their own, on the spacious grounds of "Pinebloom," the Druid Hills estate of Mrs. Preston S. Arkwright.

Mrs. Arkwright, you know, is a founder and honorary president of this worthy organization, which is composed of two day nurseries, the Osgood Sanders and the Cornelia Moore. The annual party for the children is always a highlight in their youthful lives, and the group of prominent matrons and maids, who work untiringly for the children, have left no stone unturned to make the party a grand success.

A carnival spirit will prevail at the party with all manner of tricks and pranks arranged for the children. There will be ponies to ride, fish ponds, all kinds of good refreshments in addition to two "acts" in which the children themselves will take part. The group from the Cornelia day nursery will be presented in a dance program under the direction of Nancy Keeler, while Mrs. Charles Meriwether will present a dance group from the Osgood Sanders nursery.

Mrs. Fred Shaefer is the efficient president of this worthwhile organization and her assistants for the forthcoming party are working shoulder to shoulder during these last few days to put the party "over the top." Octavia Riley Boland is serving as general chairman for the affairs and her co-chairman is Mrs. Jack Glenn. Other chairmen are Mesdames Robert Pegram, Neal Conrad, Edwin McCarty, Richard Cannon, John Pye and James Wilcox.

• • • THOSE of you who are fortunate enough to have received invitations to Anne Harris' debut presentation tomorrow take note! The affair, which will inaugurate Atlanta's first "little season," is to be al fresco and will be held in the gardens of the Valley road home of the debutante's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen W. Harris.

If it happens to rain (and Anne sincerely hopes it won't) the party will be postponed until the following afternoon. In fact, if it continues to rain the next day and the next, Anne plans to keep on putting off her debut until the sun decides to shine!

• • • BOB and Virginia Merry Jones played hosts to a house party group over the week-end at their attractive cottage at Lakemont. Always popular, this mountain resort never fails to provide endless pleasure for visitors.

Parties Planned For Bridal Couple

Miss Virginia Thomas and her fiance, James Edwin Wells, will be honored at a number of interesting parties prior to their marriage, which will be an important event of June 8, taking place at St. John's Episcopal church in College Park.

Among the parties being planned is that at which Miss Margaret McWhorter and George Gibson will honor the couple tomorrow at the Hettie Jane Dpunaway Gardens near Newnan.

May 22 is the date selected by Misses Jean Willard, Nancy Pery and Lucy Gartrelle for the bridge party at which they will entertain at the home of the latter, and Miss Pauline Baker will honor the couple at a party on May 23 at 5 o'clock at North Fulton Park.

Miss Thomas will be complimented May 25 at the kitchen shower at which Mrs. George Shepherd, assisted by Mrs. Albert Akers, will give at the home of the latter on Cambridge avenue in College Park.

Sunday, May 26, the couple will be honored at the tea to be given by Mrs. M. D. Jackson at the home of her mother, Mrs. J. D. Bazemore. She will be assisted by her mother and sisters, Mrs. H. T. Wells Jr. and Miss Marie Bazemore.

Miss Mildred Wells, sister of the groom-elect, will give a miscellaneous shower for the bride-elect at her home on Twelfth street on June 1, and on June 4 Miss Thomas will be central figure at the mother-daughter luncheon to be given by Mrs. Eva Thornton and Wayne Moore.

Among other parties planned is the luncheon to be given by Mrs. W. J. Webb for the bride-elect following her return from her wedding trip, the date for this and others to be announced later.

Miss Jewell Petty Is Honor Guest.

Miss Jewell Petty, whose marriage to John Ball will be an interesting event of June, is being entertained at a number of prenuptial affairs. Among the most recent was the buffet supper given by Mrs. J. T. Edwards at her home in West End.

The bridal motif was emphasized in the decorations. The table in the dining room was centered with a bride's cake flanked with burning white candles in crystal holders.

Guests included Mesdames Homer Hill, Rachel Turnipseed, E. P. Petty, M. O. Watson, Fischer Staton, C. H. Petty, the honor guest's mother; H. T. Pullen, Jack Williams and Misses Myrtle Davis, Virginia Boswell, Willene Petty, Laura Edwards, Edna Edwards, Sara Margaret Entrekin and the honor guest.

Miss Rainwater Entertains Board.

Miss Hattie Rainwater recently entertained the executive board of the School Garden Association of Atlanta at a seated tea. Miss Theresa Edwards, a bride-elect of June, was honor guest. The color scheme of yellow and purple was carried out in the decorations. A round table discussion of the past year's work and of ways in which the association's work could be improved were featured.

The School Garden Association meets Thursday at 3 o'clock at Fernbank. Officers will be elected and a program presented. Miss Emily Harrison will give reminiscences of events and childhood experiences connected with Fernbank. After a personally conducted tour through the woodland, supper will be served al fresco. Dr W. B. Baker, of Emory University, will present colored slides depicting the wild flower life at Fernbank.

Garden Party Fetes Bridal Couple

An interesting affair of yesterday was the garden party at which Mr. and Mrs. Gray Lambert entertained at their home on Brookhaven drive complimenting their son and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. William N. Little, of Mobile, Ala., whose marriage was an event of Thursday in Mobile. Mrs. Little is the former Miss Helen Patricia Kane, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Edward Kane, of Mobile, and her marriage to Mr. Little took place at St. Mary's church in Mobile.

Serving punch for the affair were Misses Roselle and Nancy Emery and Miss Mynelle Grove.

Mr. Little and his bride will return to Mobile today, where they are attractive members of the young married social contingent.

Simmons-Smith Plans Announced

At a quiet ceremony taking place on the afternoon May 25 Miss Frances Simmons will become the bride of Emmett N. Smith at the First Methodist church in Decatur. Rev. J. W. O. McKibben will perform the marriage at 4:30 o'clock in the presence of a few close friends and relatives of the couple.

Miss Frances Burgess, organist, will present an appropriate program of nuptial music. The couple will be unattended planning to leave after the ceremony for a wedding trip. Upon their return they will reside here.

Prior to their marriage Miss Simmons and Mr. Smith will be feted at a series of social affairs, among which will be the dinner party at which Mr. and Mrs. Frank Richards will entertain Saturday at their home on Pine Crest avenue in Decatur.

Marking the places of the guests will be miniature brides for the girls and miniature grooms for the men. Feverfew and Easter lilies will be arranged throughout the home.

Invited are Mr. and Mrs. Sharp D. Wall, Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Cammack, Mr. and Mrs. P. W. Logan, Mr. and Mrs. Robert T. Woodbury and the guests of honor.

Harper—Rumore Wedding Plans.

Miss Harriet Harper becomes the bride of Ross Rumore, of Birmingham and New York, at 5 o'clock in the afternoon of May 23 at the Little Church Around the Corner in New York. Miss Harper will be attended by Mrs. Philip Easterlin as matron of honor, and Mr. Rumore will have Mr. Easterlin as his best man.

Mr. Rumore and his bride will leave after the ceremony for a trip into Canada. Miss Harper was honor guest at a party recently at the home of Miss Louise Philips on Adair avenue. A colore scheme of green and white was used, these colors being emphasized in the appointments on the table in the dining room, where tea was served.

Atlantans Invited To Play at Brenau.

Mrs. George H. Slappey, president of the Brenau Alumnae Club of Atlanta, and the civic interest and research group announce that alumnae and friends of Brenau College are invited to attend the premiere showing of the play, "This Heritage," by Maude Fiske, in the Brenau auditorium in Gainesville at 8:30 o'clock Friday evening, May 24. The drama is built about the finding of the "Dare Stones" and the saga of the "Lost Colony of Roanoke." Those desiring to attend are asked to register as early as possible.

Invited as special guests from Atlanta are Governor and Mrs. E. D. Rivers; Dr. and Mrs. Charles Elliott, of the State Department of Natural Resources; Miss Annette McClean, curator of the state museum; Dr. M. D. Collins, state superintendent of schools, and assistant superintendent, M. E. Thompson; Mr. and Mrs. Columbus Roberts, of the State Department of Agriculture; Mayor William B. Hartsfield; Wiley Moore, of the Atlanta Automobile Association; E. S. Papy, of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce; Vernon Brown, of the junior chamber; Faber Bollinger, of the Atlanta Visitors' Bureau; Mr. Job, of the State Planning Board; Mr. and Mrs. John K. Ottley, Mrs. DeLos Hill, Mrs. Claude Crayton Smith; Mrs. Raymond Wolfe, president of the Atlanta Federated Clubs; Mrs. Howard Pattillo, president of the Atlanta Woman's Club; Mrs. Louise Hays, of the State Department of Archives; Mrs. Chester Martin, president Fifth District Federated Clubs; Mrs. Robin Wood, president National Rural-Urban Association; Mrs. Alva Maxwell and others.

The college art gallery, including the famous Simmons Memorial collection, will be open to the visitors. Cars with student guests invited by alumnae, and alumnae cars, will leave at 3:30 o'clock from Ansley park, meeting in front of the home of Mrs. Slappey, directly across from the Governor's mansion on The Prado.

There will be a short business meeting preceding the motorcade, at which time plans will be made for a tea or barbecue to be held in the early summer.

Guillebeau—Bond.

BARNESVILLE, Ga., May 19.—Colonel and Mrs. Joseph E. Guillebeau, of Barnesville, announce the marriage of their daughter, Alice Sentilla, to Jack Murray Bond, of Atlanta. The marriage took place on May 14 in Marrietta, Ga.

Miss Maxine Lapat Weds Mr. Bauer in Nashville, Tenn.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., May 19.—The marriage of Miss Maxine Lapat, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lapat, and Henry Ralph Bauer, son of Mrs. Henry Bauer, of Atlanta, Ga., took place here today at the Hermitage hotel. Rabbi Julius Mark performed the ceremony at 1:30 o'clock in the presence of members of the two families and close friends of the couple. A program of nuptial music was presented by Leon Frank, pianist, and Mrs. Ursula McCampbell, violinist.

The bride entered with her father, by whom she was given in marriage. She wore an afternoon dress of shell pink maline, featuring a sweetheart neckline. Rows of shirring formed the tight-fitting waist and short puffed sleeves. The bouffant skirt formed a short train. She wore a matching poke bonnet of maline trimmed with real orange blossoms, tied on the side with a large bow. Lace mitts completed her costume. She carried a sweetheart bouquet of white sweet peas and valley lilies.

Miss Helen Bauer, of Atlanta, cousin of the groom, was the bride's only attendant. Her dress was of turquoise blue lace chiffon, featuring a torso waistline. She wore an arrangement of flowers in her hair and carried a sweetheart bouquet of pink roses and sweetpeas.

The groom's best man was Marcus Haas, of Atlanta.

Mrs. Lapat, mother of the bride, wore an afternoon dress of black lace and chiffon. Her flowers were a shoulder bouquet of gardenias. Mrs. Bauer, mother of the groom, wore an afternoon model of hydrangea blue chiffon. Her flowers were a shoulder spray of orchids.

A reception was given by the bride's parents at the Hermitage hotel. Following the reception the bridal couple left by train for Colorado Springs. For traveling the bride wore a two-piece blue suit of Forstman's crepe with a topcoat of imported plaid wool. Completing the costume was a lace blouse of dusty rose and navy blue accessories.

Out-of-town guests for the wedding were Mrs. Henry Bauer, mother of the groom; Miss Helen Bauer, Mrs. William Bauer, Mrs. Walter Visanska, Mrs. Milton Oelsner, Miss Addie Steinheimer, Frank Steinheimer, Mr. and Mrs. Marcus Haas, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Haas, all of Atlanta, and Mrs. David Ut and Miss Paula Lapat, of New York city.

The bride is a graduate of Vanderbilt university, where she received her B. A. and M. A. degrees. She is a member of Alpha Epsilon Phi sorority.

Mr. Bauer is the grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. David Steinheimer and the great-grandson of Mr. and Mrs. David Mayer, pioneer citizens of Atlanta. Since his graduation from the University of Pennsylvania he has been connected with the Atlanta Paper Company.

Mc Hot Berry Cake

RECIPE OF THE WEEK TESTED AND APPROVED BY THE McCORMICK CONSUMER BOARD

¼ cup shortening
½ cup sugar
2 tsps. McCormick vanilla
1 egg
½ cup milk
1½ cups flour
2½ tsps. baking powder
¼ tsp. salt
1 cup blueberries (strawberries, raspberries, raisins or currants)

Cream the shortening, sugar and vanilla. Beat in the egg. Add the milk alternately, with sifted dry ingredients (saving 3 tablespoons to flour berries). Fold in the floured berries. Pour into greased pan and bake in moderate oven (375° F.) for 30 minutes.

NOTE: — Better ingredients mean better results with any recipe. Use McCormick's rich, pure, genuine Vanilla—it's "tops" for fine flavoring quality. Ask your grocer for McCormick Tea, Spices and Extracts.

Marble, Grant Win Net Titles In Finals Here

Alice Beats Wolfenden, 6-3, 6-3; Bitsy Routs Hare, 6-3, 6-3, 6-3.

By CHARLIE ROBERTS.

In the smashing finale of the finest of the annual Atlanta Invitation tennis tourneys a gay, colorful crowd of over 1,000 converged on the Northside courts yesterday to see Alice Marble, world court queen, become the ladies' singles champion with a hard-earned 6-3, 6-3 victory over 21-year-old Virginia Wolfenden, and Bitsy Grant retain the big silver bowl emblematic of the men's singles title by drubbing England's Charlie Hare 6-3, 6-3, 6-3. Alice Marble teamed with Atlanta's Russell Bobbitt to come from one set down to take the mixed doubles crown from Virginia Wolfenden and Charles Hare, 2-6, 8-6, 6-2, making them both two-time losers for the day.

In keeping the Wolfenden from the door of victory the remarkable Marble had no such easy time as she had against her earlier opponents, though in the final analysis she was quite good enough. The little San Francisco miss carried the Los Angeles queen to deuce in practically every game, and fought bitterly for every point. Twice during the milling she managed to break Alice's service, and the excellence of her cross-court, backhand stroking in particular earned for her her share of the placements and plaudits.

LONG RALLIES.

After the black-haired lass warned of a stiff fight by making a clean placement on the first point of the match she carried the count to 3-all before Marble's machine-like precision ground out three straight winning games and the set, though it was interrupted by Wolfenden's making several placements and rendering Miss Marble's drop-shot efforts ineffective. The second set was pretty much a carbon copy of the first. Extended rallies ensued, and though the youngster was never awed by the marvelous Mable's practically perfect play, she, nevertheless, was evidently worn down by the superior power stroking, forcing game and court strategy of the beautiful blonde bomber.

Charles Hare, the likable, left-handed British lad, frankly was no match for Bryan Grant except at intervals when he was able to bring his booming service or smashing overhead into play. The speed and agility of Bitsy and his crisply hit placements down both sidelines made Hare look lumbering and slow upon occasion. His clever drop shots, too, were always good for points when he chose to use them.

FIVE STRAIGHT POINTS.

The mighty mite's superiority was clearly demonstrated in the second game of the second set when Hare led one love, and was leading 40 love on his own serve. Bitsy banged out five straight points to take the game. Hare finally realized his only hope was to blister Grant's returns from the net, where he is a past master. He was foiled repeatedly as Bitsy passed him time and again, and the big Britisher knew the jig was up.

The Birmingham, (England) southpaw came back with Virginia Wolfenden and simply outclassed Alice Marble and Russell Bobbitt in the first set of the mixed doubles which they won 6-2. Hare's cannon ball service and overhead smashes crashed over point after point, and Miss Wolfenden's volleying was a thing of real beauty and brilliance. Twice they broke the service of Miss Marble, who was decidedly off.

NIP AND TUCK.

The second set was nip and tuck, even though Hare lost his opening service at love. He began to err at the net late in the set, and after he again dropped his service in the 13th game Bobbitt held his to take the set, 8-6. Twice before this the losing tandem had been within a point of winning the set and match.

Hare lost service again as the deciding set began, and the Wolfenden girl, who had played most brilliantly, lost hers for the first time later in the set. She, too, had begun to tire, and the last set was a breeze for Marble and Bobbitt. Appropriately beauteous Alice served the final game, and smashed home the last point with a cross court, forehand placement to send the crowd home well reminded she is still the champ, and probably will be until old age slows up her shapely underpinning.

Means To An End

The performance of Bimelech to date in the good year 1940 may be a means to an end. It may end "mass thinking" among those who chronicle the doings of the bangtails.

It is strange how mass thinking works. It is a great deal like the mob spirit because, in reality, there is no thinking at all.

A horse like Bimelech wins seven races in a row as a two-year-old. He is great as a freshman. And so immediately there is a rush to his side. Sure, he can't miss being a varsity star. Why, he's got everything.

This spreads like wildfire. Pretty soon the animal is colossal. He's greater than Man o' War, has more punch than Jack Dempsey and is an equine counterpart of Babe Ruth.

No effort is made to pick flaws in him because the mass thinking procedure prefers to hold him invincible.

In Bimelech's case it was the Kentucky Derby. He was a sure thing. Gallahadion, who had lost 14 races, led Bim to the wire.

Some of those who were sure of his greatness couldn't take it and, seeking an excuse, feebly laid the blame to his jockey.

A week later Bim won the Preakness and Gallahadion, Bim's conquerer in the Derby, finished third. Same Jockey, Freddie Smith, rode Bim.

But Saturday's result at Belmont definitely ends the mass thinking as regards Bimelech. And should end it forever as regards any horse.

And Big Bim always will be a big bum in so far as Man o' War's winning record is concerned.

For there are days, to use the immortal words of Calvin Coolidge, when Bimmy does not choose to run.

"When Kelly Drinks . . ."

Shipwreck Kelly, the Kentucky back who had such a colorful career as a collegian and a pro—he's the same guy who wandered on a field where kids were playing touch football and broke his leg against a goal post—is in the news again.

Charley Belcher Fails to Set Mark

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 19.—(AP)—Charley Belcher, Georgia Tech's former three-time winner of the Southeastern Conference quarter-mile championship, raced against time here yesterday in an unsuccessful attempt to set a new United States record.

The powerful runner flashed over the 440-yard course at conclusion of the eighth annual S. E. C. meet in 47.8 seconds, equalling the time set earlier in the afternoon by Frank Church, of Louisiana State, 1940 conference champion. The S. E. C. record is 46.8, set by Hardin, of L. S. U., in 1934; the American intercollegiate standard, 46.5.

Three Title Fights Slated This Week

Henry Armstrong, welterweight kingpin from Los Angeles, defends his laurels for the second time in a month at Boston when he faces Ralph Zanelli, of Providence, R. I., in a 15-rounder Friday night.

Ceferino Garcia, New York and California recognized middleweight champion from Los Angeles, takes on Ken Overlin, of Washington, D. C., in Madison Square Garden for 15 rounds Thursday.

Joey Archibald, of Pawtucket, R. I., and Harry Jeffra from Baltimore fight for the New York and Maryland version of featherweight title in a 15-round bout at Baltimore, Md., tomorrow night.

Chicks Flatten Nashville Vols In Double Bill

Bud Hafey Drives in 8 Runs in First Game To Tie Record.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., May 19.—(AP)—Showing little respect for the heralded power of the Nashville Vols, Memphis' Chicks took both games of a double-header to sweep a three-game series with the league leaders. The scores were 10 to 3 and 3 to 2.

After Gus Dugas' sixth home run of the season had given the home team a 2-1 advantage in the fourth frame of the nightcap, Veverka boosted one out of the park with a man on to clinch the Chicks' double victory.

Hafey's prodigious clouting gave the visitors their first-game triumph. The Chick outfielder collected two singles, a triple and a home run to drive in eight runs, tying the league record of eight. His 400-foot triple narrowly missed being another homer, the ball hitting the top of the fence and bouncing back into the park.

CHICKS 10-3; VOLS 3-2.

HITS IN CLUTCH—Alf Anderson, Decatur boy playing shortstop with the Crackers, boasts the second highest average of any Atlanta player. Alf is hitting .352. His single, misplayed by the New Orleans centerfielder, yesterday cleaned the bases in the ninth inning with two out and won the first game, 6-5. Emil Mailho, the team's leading batter, decided the nightcap with a home run, 5-4. The Crackers, five and one-half games out of first place, open a road trip tomorrow night in Birmingham.

Vibberts Wins In Legion Rifle Test at Macon

Holmes Wins State Association Navy Match at Holton Range.

Riflemen from throughout the state competed in the spring .30 caliber rifle matches staged by the Georgia Rifle and Pistol Association at the Holton Range, Macon, yesterday.

The American Legion match, 20 shots standing at 200 yards, was won by Legionnaire Russ Vibberts with a 90x100. Second and third places were captured by Legionnaires Ernest Sellers, 88x100, and Tom Salter, 82x100.

The state association navy match, 20 shots standing 200 yards, was hotly contested, with these results:

As a member of the Naval Reserve, it was fitting that Mr. Holmes win the navy match.

Winners of the aggregate in the day's matches were: Arthur Ferguson, 282x300; John Norman, 274x300; Lloyd Cummings, 272x300; Russ Vibberts, 269x300; George Cook, 267x300.

Arrangements for all matches were handled by John Norman, vice president of the Georgia Rifle and Pistol Association. Flawless conduction of the firing line and pits was enjoyed under the supervision of Major Lester Webb, United States army, and Major W. B. Barnett of the Georgia national guard.

Competitors included 25 contestants for the civilian team to represent this state at the national rifle matches, held at Camp Perry, Ohio, by the War Department, August 18 to September 7.

Smoky Shortstop Is Sold to Chiefs

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., May 19.—(AP)—The Knoxville Ball Club of the Southern Association tonight announced the outright sale to Syracuse of the International League, of Jim McLeod, veteran shortstop.

Last year with Knoxville McLeod hit .294 and was recognized as one of the best defensive players in the league. He has been in a slump this season and was hitting less than .200 when sold.

Marshall and Mailho Hit Nine Homers in Week for Crackers

Young Rightfielder Looks Like Best Hitter Atlanta Ever Had; Pitchers Dread Him Now; Local Team Only 5 1-2 Games From Top.

By JACK TROY.

With these nine homers and five victories in the last seven games, the Crackers are only five and one-half games out of first place.

What's the matter with the Crackers?

He makes a mockery of the right field signs. He just missed by so far getting three home runs instead of one in the second game of the Pelican double-header.

A third-inning triple just missed clearing the corner of the signs, and a fifth-inning single didn't miss the top of the first tier by more than a foot.

Marshall hit a homer a game in the Birmingham series, one Saturday and another one in the second game yesterday.

The fans are ga-ga over his slugging. He makes it look so easy. He picks out one he likes and gives it a ride. He made a great one-handed catch against the signs in the first game Sunday.

Better make your plans to see him hit when the Crackers return next Tuesday night because at the rate he's going he'll be drawing more bases on balls than Mailho. And it won't be because the pitchers can't get the ball over the plate.

SHOT-PUT WINS.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 18.—(UP)—Mrs. M. Evans' Shot Put went to the front at the head of the stretch in the 22nd running of the Kentucky handicap at Churchill Downs today and charged to the wire a neck before James Emery's Dolly Val. Milky Way Farm's Up the Creek was third.

Chick Pilot Works 2 Games; Near 50

After injuries incapacitated both Memphis backstoppers, Hannah placed himself on the active list and caught both games at Nashville today.

Appearance of his name in the lineup brought to an end several years of managing from the bench and laid him open to some sort of record for baseball durability. Approaching 50, Truck broke into baseball in 1911—29 years ago.

Title Matches Billed Tonight In Badminton

City Badminton championships will be at stake in the finals scheduled for tonight at the Atlanta Athletic Club. Officials announce that these matches are open to the public and that there will be a slight admission charge.

Novice singles finals will open tonight's program at 7 o'clock. Novice doubles are scheduled half an hour later.

At 8 o'clock, the ladies' singles title will be determined and this will be followed by ladies' doubles at 8:30.

Championship men's singles begin at 9 o'clock, with men's doubles carded for 9:30 and mixed doubles closing out the program at 10 o'clock.

Motorcycle Race Won by Atlantan

C. R. Ledbetter, Atlanta, yesterday won the 20-mile motorcycle feature at Gadsden, Ala., as a sort of warm-up for the races slated here next Sunday.

Five-Run Rally In 9th Decides First Game, 6-5

Marshall's Three - Run Homer, Mailho's Circuit Clout Wins 2d, 5-4.

By JACK TROY.

You may have heard it before, but it still goes.

There was a real proof of it again out at Ponce de Leon park yesterday befor a fine crowd of 8,045, when the Crackers took both ends of a double-header from the Pelicans, 6 to 5 and 5 to 4.

The Crackers needed four runs to tie and five to win in the ninth inning of the first game, and there were two men out.

HAFEY DOUBLES.

The Crackers scored one run on Block's walk and Hafey's double with two out. Jurisich departed and Martynik entered. Then they got another when Burge greeted Martynik with a double. Marshall and McQuillen drew walks, loading the bases.

Al Sherer relieved Martynik and Alf Anderson delivered in the clutch, driving a single to center. It scored Burge and Poindexter, running for Marshall, and McQuillen, who put a great block on Catcher Bremer, also scored when Gillenwater booted Anderson's single. Bremer dropped the relay throw as McQuillen hit him at the plate.

Snead's 71-69 Gives Him Second Place in Goodall Round Robin.

By GAYLE TALBOT.

NEW YORK, May 19.—(AP)—They threatened Ben Hogan late today and Ben replied like a true champion to win the Goodall Robin golf tournament with a thrilling final round of 69 over Fresh Meadow course.

After having led the parade of crack professionals for five rounds of match play, the slender boy from Texas found Sam Snead, the mountaineer, breathing on his neck in the straightaway. His lead was menaced. Hogan bowed his lame back to blaze around the final nine in 33 strokes and take first prize of $1,000.

The finish was far closer than anyone had anticipated. Hogan began the final day with an apparently unbeatable total of 24 "plus" points against eight owned by Gene Sarazen, doughty little veteran in second place.

LEAD DWINDLES.

But after the morning round, where Hogan soared to 73 strokes, he had a score of only 19 points against Snead's 11. A crowd of more than 4,000 trampled the course in the afternoon, watching for Hogan to crack and for Snead to catch him. For a time it seemed the leader might be overtaken, but when they hit the stretch Hogan proved his new-found class. He takes his place now alongside those other Texas links titans—Ralph Guldahl, Byron Nelson, Dick Metz and Jimmy Demaret.

Hogan, dark and thin, shot seven rounds of match play in 491 strokes, one over par for the exacting Fresh Meadow layout. He was two strokes under Harry Cooper's winning total of a year ago.

Hogan's final "plus" score was 23, meaning he won that many more holes than he lost in the seven rounds against star competition. He won 10 matches while losing four, which is a noble average.

PRIZE OF $750.

Snead's 71-69 on the last day gave him second prize of $750. He finished with a plus score of 19, picking up 12 points in his last two rounds. He waxed fat in the afternoon at the expense of Jimmy Thompson and Clayton Heafner.

Gene Sarazen won third money, $550, with seven points above the board. Dick Metz turned in two great rounds of 68-69 today to finish with five points and win fourth money, $450.

Paul Runyan was fifth with four points, while Byron Nelson had two and Henry Picard and Martin Pose, of the Argentine, finished all-even after seven tough match rounds. The "minus" finishers were Heafner, one; Jimmy Thompson, four; Lawson Little, seven; Horton Smith, eight; Jimmy Demaret, 11; Jimmy Hines, 12; and Craig Wood, 17.

Hogan's victory here gave him a total winnings of $7,538 for the year, second only to that of Jimmy Demaret, who had pocketed $7,777. Byron Nelson, still another Texas product, is in third place with $4,813.

36 Holes Required To Win Golf Test

Dr. George Fuller, chairman of the Druid Hills tournament committee, is setting a fine example for competitors in getting matches played on time.

He and Joe Sewell couldn't settle their match on 18 holes. Nine more didn't help any, so they went 36 before Dr. Fuller won, 2 and 1, in the President's cup handicap meet.

Dutch Leonard Yields 15 Hits But Wins, 12-10

Home Run Barrage Gives Browns Win Over A's; Red Ruffing Loser.

CLEVELAND, May 19.—(AP)—Bob Feller pitched four-hit ball today to give the Cleveland Indians a 5-to-1 victory over the seventh-place New York Yankees. It was Feller's fifth win of the season and the third defeat for Red Ruffing, who worked the route for the Yankees.

Dillon, Bloomfield Top Card Tonight

Bloomfield has wrestled here on many occasions, and his feature match with Dillon is expected to provide the fans with plenty of thrills. They tangle in a one-hour, two-out-of-three-falls match.

In the semi-windup, Red Dugan, Chattanooga terror, will pit skill against Jack MacAdams, scientific Atlanta grappler, and a former southern light-heavyweight champion. They, too, will grip in a one-hour-three-fall affair. Tony Papalino, popular New York Italian, whose record as an outstanding grappler speaks for itself, will match holds with tough "Wild Bill" Collins, of College Park, in the opening match.

The arena is located between Boulevard and Parkway drive, one block from Auburn avenue. The program will start at 8:30 o'clock. Reserve seats may be obtained by calling MAin 2539. Popular prices will prevail.

Sharp SHOOTIN'
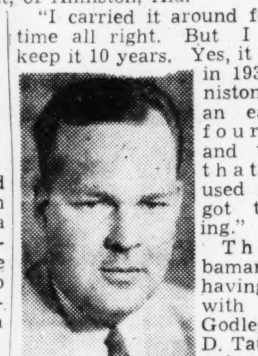
by AL SHARP

"Have you got that clipping in your pocket?" asked J. F. Roller, of Birmingham. "You know the one about your being 6 under par for 5 holes."

He was talking to E. S. Bobbitt, of Anniston, Ala.

"I carried it around for a long time all right. But I couldn't keep it 10 years. Yes, it happened in 1930 at Anniston. I had an eagle and four birdies, and that was that. Ripley used it, so I got the clipping."



SHARP.

The Alabamans were having lunch with R. B. Godley and W. D. Taulman, of Atlanta, at the Capital City Club before playing a round of golf.

That story led to others as stories have a way of doing.

Roller told about Charlie Hall's ball knocking Charlie Webb's off a peg just as Hall started to swing. Yes, Hall hit at thin air.

Papa had hooked his drive off the fourth tea and his second shot was down in the hollow so he couldn't see the green.

There was a man on the green putting. The ball rolled between the player's legs just after he had stroked the ball. Beckett's ball followed the putt. The putt went into the hole. So did Howard's ball.

Then Bobbitt got the floor.

He had a lot of interesting things to say about the Colonial Country Club, where the National Open will be played next year.

"That Fort Worth course has bent greens," he related. "It was a mystery to me. But there they were. And they don't have trouble with them, either.

"That's something, because you know how few southern courses fool with bent. It just won't stand hot weather. The eastern and northern courses have it, but they don't have to worry about too much hot weather.

"I was under the impression that hot sun would ruin the bent greens. But they say it doesn't down there—even at 110.

"Drainage is the answer, they told me. Fix the drainage so water won't stand in any spot and you won't have any trouble with bent.

"It's a remarkable thing.

"I've been thinking some of the clubs should send men down there and find out about it.

"The club has just been running five years, and it has some of the finest greens you ever saw.

"They cost a lot of money, but the owners wanted bent greens. They were going to have them or else. Now they've got them, and they may have solved a problem for other southern courses."

Golf News Of Atlanta

KEY TEAM WINS.

Key's four-man team handed Candler Park a 6-to-0 defeat in the opening match of the Atlanta Public Links Association's inter-club matches yesterday. The match between Bobby Jones Club and Piedmont Park was not played, Piedmont failing to get a team together.

Smith and George Clayton had a best ball of 61 as they turned back Spain Davis and Charlie Ozmer, 5 and 4. Barnes and Skeet Dudley won from Stewart Copeland and H. C. Brook, 4 and 3.

J. T. Stanfield defeated Bob Mayo, 4 and 2, to reach the finals of the Candler tournament. He will meet the winner of the Ozmer-Bob McCoy match, slated today at 10 o'clock.

H. C. McDonald beat J. C. Goings, 3 and 2, in the second flight finals. P. H. Norton won the third flight with a 5-and-4 victory over J. K. Bradford. The fourth flight finals, to be played this week, will bring together J. D. Cornewll and O. B. Chatfield.

GRIPERS' FLIGHT.

Druid Hills golfers came up with a new twist to tournament play. Losers in the President's Cup Handicap tournament weren't satisfied, so they formed the Gripers' flight. They are playing for the Janitor's Cup.

That will give them a chance to keep on playing for prizes. Undisturbed, the winners kept on playing, too. And here are the results:

Championship Flight—Dr. M. D. Huff defeated Paul King, 6 and 5; Harold Carson defeated D. Donaldson, default; Dr. George Fuller defeated Joe Sewell, 2 and 1 (36 holes); Charles Brumby defeated Joe Fanbrough, 2 and 1; Gene Gaillard defeated L. D. McMath, 2 up; H. E. Denison defeated H. L. Young, default; Arthur Burdette defeated J. O. Knight, 1 up; Curtis Benton defeated Dr. J. W. Rowan, 2 up.

Second Flight—W. F. Methvin defeated Bill Leide, 3 and 2; Alvin Cooledge defeated Dr. E. G. Ballinger, 4 and 3; Dr. J. R. Childs defeated R. Massengale, default; L. W. Horton defeated David Jones, 5 and 4; W. R. Bentley defeated Dr. J. J. Clark, 4 and 3; W. D. Stann defeated Alan Ford, 3 and 2; Sonny Cooledge defeated C. M. Bowden, 3 and 2; Art Mims defeated H. R. Surratt, default.

Third Flight—C. H. Whitworth defeated Gordon Freeman, 2 and 1; Robert Cousins defeated Roy Massey, 3 and 2; Dr. W. A. Selman defeated Scott Hogg, 4 and 3; Bobby Adair defeated Charles Parks, 6 and 4; H. L. Blackwell defeated Harold Braun, 2 up; Joe Horacek Jr., defeated Jack Kendrick, 4 and 3; E. G. Miller defeated Charles Holditch, 2 and 1; Theo McCord defeated Dr. A. B. Anderson, 1 up.

EAST LAKE DOGFITE.

E. R. Collins, R. B. Smith, D. F. Coleman and Rufus Brown won the dogfight at East Lake yesterday with 111. Twenty foursomes played in the event. Those sharing in the prizes included:

113—J. A. Whatley, Bob Moore, J. B. Hutson and Dr. M. F. Fowler; J. B. McConnell, Ben Conyers, Ben Berry and R. L. Porter. 114—R. D. Ison, R. D. Ison Jr., W. F. Ison and R. L. Henderson. 116—Dr. C. L. Douglass, C. W. Lawson, Jack Sargent and D. E. Allen; Elgin Poole, F. W. Rade, R. J. Sims and J. B. Stewart; Pete Barnes, A. P. McElroy, A. C. Spinks and J. V. Simmons; George Sargent Jr., Houston White, C. H. Williams and George Cosby. 117—C. H. Roberts, G. A. Goddard, H. L. Gilham and Julian Erwin; L. W. Hill, J. C. Kyle, C. S. Moeckel and E. A. Lemons; Jack Robertson, H. D. Kline, W. T. Ezell and A. Carnes.

EAGLE AT CAPITAL CITY.

Horace Beck holed a full 3-iron shot at Capital City's 16th yesterday for an eagle 2.

W. C. Wardlaw and Blair Foster tied for the bogey with 73's. Hugh Nunnally, J. P. Wilson and M. S. Bass had 74's and B. W. McKinney, Bill Healey and Tom Shropshire registered 72's.

WITTING FIRES 67.

F. H. Witting, who usually shoots around 75, came up with a 4-under-par 67 on East Lake's No. 2 course Saturday. The fine round included an eagle 2 on the 4th hole, where he sank a 5-iron shot.

HARRY BARNES WINS.

Harry Barnes won the Sears tournament at Forrest Hills, defeating J. J. McGeary, 1 up. Pete R. Bailey took the first flight with a 3-and-2 victory over W. K. Mattison.

The ladies' division was won by Mildred Bradford, who defeated Leila Wilder, 2 and 1.

CANDLER BOGEY.

H. C. Brook won the bogey at Candler Park yesterday with a 74. Charlie Ozmer and W. M. Schroeder divided second prize with a 75 and a 73, respectively.

BERRY IS MEDALIST.

George Berry, Atlanta Junior champion, took the medal in the spring handicap tournament at West End with a 67. He will meet Harold Hough in the first round, which must be finished by Sunday night. Losers in the division matches will play again in the flights to be formed after this week's competition.

The pairings:

First Division—Berry vs. Hough, J. A. Womack Jr., vs. J. L. Britton, Harry Roper vs. George Shealy, D. F. Hoskins vs. L. A. Chambers, C. E. Betsill vs. F. C. Dough, Mel Clark vs. L. M. Saye, Billy Gibson vs. Dawson Ragsdale, Tip Schier vs. J. W. Walton.

Second Division—Dr. J. M. Swicegood vs. A. J. Smith, R. A. Moore vs. Harry Cohen, Herb Clark vs. H. W. Chambers, J. W. Slaton vs. E. L. Bardin, Billy Womack vs. George Wilson, T. E. Tollison vs. S. W. Buckner, M. C. Bishop vs. Paul Ford, R. L. Jordan vs. H. A. Cochran.

Third Division—E. D. Youngblood vs. Roy Brown, J. P. Cummings vs. J. D. McClure, George Curry vs. R. J. McLeod, E. C. Kirkland vs. Frank Landers, S. P. Boles vs. George Grant, Dr. N. W. Baird vs. C. H. Livsey, A. J. Kaiser vs. M. M. Anderson, George Simons vs Stanley Stokes.

Fourth Division—K. D. Body, J. Roy Starr, F. F. Ataway, F. W. Smalley, J. F. Marlowe and W. A. Wynn (all drew byes).

No one hit the blind bogey, but Harold Hough, S. W. Buckner and C. E. Betsill were close with 72's. Frank Dough and L. A. Chambers had 73's for the next place.

BOBBY JONES BOGEY.

No one had the winning number of 80 at Bobby Jones. D. H. Therrell and Ed Kernan were closest with 78's. The special prize was won by H. B. Sewell.

INGLESIDE BOGEY.

KEY BOGEY.

Morris Weinstein hit the Key Club's bogey with an 80. D. L. Gardner and

Eight Matmen Here Tuesday All Are Giants

Atlanta wrestling fans have a heavy date tomorrow night at the ball park. The eight heavyweights on Promoter Bill Hartman's card crush the scales for a total of 1,870 pounds—approximately an average of 234 pounds per man.

Cowboy Luttrell and Herbie Freeman are partners in a team match against two of the game's ranking villains—Babe Zaharias and Angelo Cistoldi, Italian champion, who comes into the ring and gives the Nazi salute.

Luttrell and Freeman, who were refereeing, teamed up against Dorv Roche last week, but Hartman believes they will find Zaharias and Cistoldi most annoying.

It is probably the biggest show of the summer. Tickets may be obtained at 42 Forsyth street, Main 7167.

A.W.G.A. Tourney Is Slated Tuesday

The Atlanta Women's Golf Association will hold a one-day tournament at Druid Hills Tuesday. Mrs. Max Mentzer and Mrs. M. V. Larned will be in charge as club representatives. Prizes for sealed nines in various classes will be given.

Montezuma Meet Slated Thursday

MONTEZUMA, Ga., May 19.—The Montezuma Golf Club will hold its annual invitation tournament Thursday, Pro Howard Lilliston announced.

ANSLEY BOGEY.

WALTHOUR LEAGUE.

Barrett Service clinched undisputed possession of second place in the Walthour League by barely slipping by Guy Mote's North Side Pep Class crew, 12 to 11, Sunday at Maddox park. J. D. Stallings, Penn and Huff pounded out home runs for Pep. Pep fell just short of winning the game in the ninth when they pushed across two runs and had men stranded on second and third as the final out was made. Irland and Price led the winning attack.

CRACKERS

gess in the third, his second victory of the season.

YOUNG BAMBINO.

Willard Marshall's three-run homer in the first inning and Emil Mailho's smash with none on in the fifth were the big wallops of the second game. Marshall also hit a triple in the third inning and scored on Glock's single.

So Emile Lochbaum, allowing eight hits, won his fifth straight game of the season. Gordon Maltzberger, ex-Cracker, was the loser.

The Crackers, who have won their last five games, are off today. They open a three-game series at Birmingham Tuesday night. Larry Miller will pitch.

FIRST GAME.

The Pels winged out in front with runs in the first and second innings. Ankemann led off with a double and went to third on Burton's infield hit. Rogers flied to left and Ankemann scored after the catch.

In the second inning Glock dropped Gillenwater's fly and it was a two-base error. And with two out Ludwig's single scored Gillenwater.

Two more runs put the Pels well out in front in the third. Ankenmann singled and Burton sacrificed. Rogers tripled, scoring Ankemann. Burgess was relieved by Kerksieck. And after Brown was hit by a pitched ball, Gillenwater flied to center and Rogers scored after the catch.

The Crackers left a total of six men on the bases in the second and third. Richards struck out with the bases loaded and one out in the second, and McQiullen fanned with all sacks filled and two out in the third.

TAKES WILD PITCH.

It became evident that it would take something like a wild pitch for the Crackers to score, and that's how they got their first run in the fifth. Mailho walked, advanced on an infield out, went to third on an outfield fly and scored on Jurasich's wild pitch.

Ankemann walked, moved up on a passed ball and scored on Browne's single in the seventh.

A stunning five-run rally beat the Pelicans with two out in the ninth. Glock walked with one out. Mailho flied out to make it two. Hafey doubled to left, scoring Glock, and Jurisich was removed. Martynik came in. Burge doubled, scoring Hafey. Martynik walked Marshall and McQuillen, loading the bases, and Sherer replaced Martynik. Anderson singled to center, scoring Burge and Poindexter, running for Marshall, and when Gillenwater fumbled the ball, McQuillen kept on going. McQuillen scored the winning run as he bowled over Bremer, who dropped Ankenmann's relay throw.

Martynik was the losing pitcher and Kerksieck the winner.

SECOND GAME.

Hafey and Burge gave the Pels a run in the first inning. Hafey threw wild at first on Ankemann's grounder, and Ankemann went to second. Burton singled to short right. Rogers walked. Browne bounced to Burge, who touched first instead of throwing home for the obvious force play.

Despite a double play the Crackers scored three runs in their half. It was done by Marshall hitting a home run with two on. He hit it more than 400 feet over the corner of the signs. Glock singled and Mailho walked. Hafey hit into a double play, Ludwig to Ankenman to Browne. Burge walked and then Marshall lost one.

Ludwig's double and Burton's single accounted for another Pel run in the second.

With two out in the third, Marshall hit the corner of the signs for a triple and McQuillen drove him home with a sharp single.

Mailho hit a home run in the Crackers' half with nobody on and the Crackers were ahead again.

RETAIN TITLE.

DES MOINES, Iowa, May 19.—(UP) — The vaunted Oklahoma Aggies scored seven firsts and ran up 74.6 points to retain their Missouri Valley conference track championship here with a minimum of effort.

Lose Anything Over the Week End?

SINCE 1706 when it is said the first "Lost" ad appeared in a London newspaper, people have been using daily newspapers to recover lost articles.

For the past 72 years The Constitution has served Atlantans as a medium for restoring lost articles to owners . . . and nothing is ever lost in Atlanta until a Constitution "Lost" ad has failed to find it.

Call WAlnut 6565 . . . list a small ad and give the finder a chance to locate you. You may "charge it."

Answers To Constitution Quiz

1. Yes.
2. Spare him.
3. Third.
4. Williamsburg.
5. Oliver Wendell Holmes Jr.
6. Yes.
7. Kon-sum'-it, adjective; kon'-su-mate, verb.
8. President James Monroe.
9. No.
10. Very near the center.

Today's Common Error.

The expression "not to exceed" should only be used in giving or quoting orders, as, "He was authorized to spend not to exceed five dollars." It is often misused for "not more than;" as, "The train was composed or not more than 20 cars."

Roy Callaway To Seek Bolen Seat on Council

Former Alderman Favors Bond Issue for School Housing.

Roy E. Callaway, attorney and former alderman from the fourth ward, has announced he will run to succeed Councilman C. N. Bolen, of the fourth ward, in the city primary, September 4.

Callaway resigned his aldermanic post because of ill health, and has not been connected with the city government for about two years.

In the past, he has been active in political, civic and fraternal circles.

While a member of council, he served as chairman of the council hospital committee and was a member of the Grady hospital board of trustees.

"I think something should be done to meet the housing emergency facing the city schools, and that a fair distribution of funds should be made to meet needs throughout the municipality," he said. "I favor an adequate bond issue for this purpose. I shall insist always that the financial integrity of the municipality be preserved, and that taxpayers receive a dollars' worth of value for every dollar expended."

Georgia's Crops In Good Shape, Survey Shows

Corn Replacing Cotton as Leader in Number of Acres Planted.

ATHENS, Ga., May 19.—Georgia's truck crops, although late because of sub-seasonal temperatures, generally are making satisfactory progress with the outlook good, and moisture this month is adequate in most localities, the State Crop Reporting Service said today.

Meanwhile, the Georgia Agricultural Extension Service in reporting on a 10-year survey of Georgia crops, disclosed that corn has become the number one crop in point of acreage. In 1939, 4,346,000 acres—more than one-third of 12,732,000 acres under cultivation—were devoted to corn. Last year's crop was 36,941,000 bushels.

During this same 10-year period the cotton acreage has dropped nearly one and one-half million acres. However, while there has been a decrease in cotton growing the yield per acre has shown an increase.

Tobacco acreage was boosted 29,000 acres, permanent pastures increased 160,000 acres, temporary pasture showed an increase of 360 per cent, or 132,000 acres.

Considerable increase was noted for acreage of small grains seeded by Georgia farmers during the past 10 years. Oat acreage was raised 137,000 acres; wheat, 128,000; rye for grazing, 29,000; rye for grain, 9,000; and small grain for hay, 24,000.

Sweet potatoes were increased considerably with last year's acreage being 117,000, an increase of 32,000 over the 85,000 acres reported in 1929. Irish potatoes increased only 5,000 acres, while commercial truck crops other than melons increased 9,000 acres over the 1929 figure of 37,000 acres.

The report by crops:

Lima Beans—Outlook indicates some reduction in yield due to the April cold damage but no material decrease in production is likely because of new acreage in Decatur, Effingham, Grady, Tift and Worth counties. Picking should start in early June.

Snap Beans—Light yields of fair to good quality are indicated. While this year's 4,200 acres is a substantial increase over the 3,500 last year, the April cold reduced the yield, indicating the 1940 production will be 168,000 bushels compared to 280,000 in 1939. South Georgia now is at peak production.

Cabbage—Shipments are decreasing in south Georgia and the harvest season should be over by May 25. Most transplanting in north Georgia was completed by mid-May. Estimates point to 1,250 acres in north Georgia compared with 1,450 last year.

Cantaloups—Stands are generally fair and the crop, later than usual, is making encouraging progress. The indicated 1940 acreage is 9,500 acres compared with 9,000 in 1939.

Cucumbers—No material change from the 1939 production appears likely. The harvest is eight to ten days late. The principal sources of supply will be in the Valdosta, Adel, Cairo and Claxton-Glennville areas.

Pimientos—Transplanting is well advanced and earlier settings are making normal progress. Indications, which pointed to a possible shortage of plants two weeks ago, now hint that the plant supply will be adequate. About 20,190 acres are expected, compared with 22,090 last year.

Potatoes—Movement should become active in allareas by tomorrow, with peak loading expected between May 25 and June 10. Early Irish potatoes are expected to total 570,000 bushels, compared with 368,000 in 1939.

Watermelons—Rain is needed in the heavy producing counties of Thomas, Brooks and Colquitt. The crop continues to make only fair progress and no Georgia melons are expected before July 1. Georgia's indicated acreage is 66,000 compared with 62,600 last season.

Preparing for Totalitarian Threat, Uncle Sam Hastens To Mend Chinks in His Armor

FROM WHAT FRONT comes this picture? you may ask. The answer—none! You're seeing a U. S. tank leading a mock attack with war wings overhead. Uncle Sam's martial arm will be greatly strengthened if the proposed defense measure is passed.

TOUGH ON WAR WINGS will be these U. S. anti-plane guns if war envelops American shores. An item of $64,000,000 for anti-aircraft equipment is included in the proposed measure to increase mightily U. S. preparedness for trouble.

AERIAL 'HORSES' are studied by Randolph Field cadets, who must know mechanical fundamentals of their powerful motors. Soon they'll be guiding the battle wings of Uncle Sam.

'ON THE LINE' Which, in the jargon of a flying cadet, means being ready to fly. Fully equipped with parachutes, these winged youngsters at Randolph Field pore over a map as they await instructions for that cross-country workout through the heavens.

PINFEATHERS have been shed by these newly outfitted Randolph Field cadets, who now will begin a rigid disciplinary training for the army air corps of their Uncle Sam. Good luck, fledglings.

A FAR CRY from the muzzle-loading cannon of the wars of other years are today's anti-aircraft guns. Yes, siree! Then, you shoved home the powder and ball, aimed her with your eye, then blooie! Today a director such as this at Aberdeen, Md., guides a battery of four three-inch anti-plane guns. Development of anti-aircraft instruments is planned in the mighty defense program which is now moving through congress.

INHALE! Thus three husky flying cadets start their day at Randolph Field, breathing deeply, eyes alertly on the sky they'll be trained to keep inviolate. Is American destiny in their strong hands?
